Fair midway goes up

The midway for this year's State Fair is claimed to be the "world's largest motorized midway" by its owners, the Murphy Brothers. More than 100 rides, shows and concessions are being put together on the Fairgrounds for the start of the Fair this Friday.

Ford calls Wilson on Cyprus fighting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Facing his first international crisis, President Ford made a transatlantic telephone call to British Prime Minister Harold Wilson today as he joined diplomatic efforts to ease the latest outbreak of fighting in Cyprus.

Britain is a guarantor of the 1960 treaty establishing the independence of Cyprus.

The Ford call to Wilson came as a State Department spokesman warned both Greece and Turkey their military aid from the United States will be cut off if they go to war.

"The United States is convinced that only through a return to negotiations can an agreement be established which will serve to restore the constitutional government to Cyprus and peace and stability to the area," said State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey.

Ford, alerted after midnight at his Alexandria, Va., home by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, has been keeping in "close touch" with the developments in Cyprus, where fighting has resumed, Press Secretary Jerald terHorst said.

There were no immediate disclosures of what Ford and Wilson discussed in what was their first telephone conference and talk since Ford became President.

The Wilson phone call came shortly after noon, Washington time as Ford worked with Kissinger on diplomatic efforts to help out in the crisis.

Ford also met with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, but terHorst said that meeting was set up previously at the request of the Soviet ambassador, who came to deliver a message from Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. However, terHorst did not rule out the possibility that they might have discussed the Cyprus situation in the 30-minute scheduled Oval Office meeting.

One result of the international crisis was a possible delay in Ford's plans for announcing a new vice president, which he hoped to do by the end of this week.

TerHorst said there "may be a change in plans for the announcement of the vice presidential nominee brought about by the time President Ford is having to spend on the Cyprus situation.

Turning to economic problems, the President also added a meeting with Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., to his crowded schedule, urging an "atmosphere of self-sacrifice" to help deal with inflation.

"Why can't everybody make a little sacrifice?" to cope with inflation, Ford said as he sat down with the senator.

The President and Kissinger met earlier in the wake of renewed fighting on Cyprus and the calling of an emergency session of the U.N. Security Council in New York.

As he as leaving his Alexandria, Va. home this morning for the White House, Ford told reporters he also had conferred Tuesday night by telephone with Kissinger on the latest developments in Cyprus. The President did not elaborate.

It was the new President's first international crisis.

On domestic matters, a White House spokesman conceded for the first time that Ford may be growing attached to his new job and Ford served notice that he intends to be his own man in economics as well as politics.

White House Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst relayed the word on Tuesday that there would be a "Ford program" to fight inflation, with the firm imprimatur of the new President.

One of Ford's economic proposals was to be revealed today when Budget Director Roy L. Ash appears before the House Banking and Currency Committee to outline recommendations for an anti-inflation agency.

Asked if the economic policies that former President Richard M. Nixon had announced only a month ago in a Los Angeles speech were under review and liable to change, terHorst said, "That would be a fair statement."

The question came after terHorst reported that Ford had told a private meeting of lower-level administration officials that he did not expect to come up with any instant panaceas for the nation's inflation, but "at least there would be a Ford program."

Reminded that Ford had the same economic advisers who formulated Nixon policies, terHorst said Ford "has told them that the country has a new President," who expects to have his own inputs and perhaps come up with some new ideas.

"He thinks the country expects it of him," terHorst said. "He thinks he has reason to believe that Congress would cooperate if he can offer programs that make sense on Capitol Hill."

TerHorst also let slip another change in Ford ideas when he conceded that Ford's previous "no" to a possible 1976 presidential candidacy is now a "maybe."

Agriculture Department violated its own rules

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Department of Agriculture didn't follow its own regulations in connection with the state law governing unfair sales practices, the chief of the department's dairy division has admitted.

Some of the once-secret records on milk pricing policies of middlemen were opened to the public Tuesday when they were turned over to a Missouri House-Senate committee looking into agriculture problems around the state.

Under rules drafted by the department to implement the 1959 Milk Sales Practices Act, processors' decisions to lower prices to meet competition must be approved by the Agricultue Department, following an investigation.

Under intense questioning by state Sen. Paul Bradshaw, R-Springfield, dairy division chief Charles Vanlanduyt said those regulations were not followed.

"Are you saying you don't have investigation reports on all of these?" Bradshaw asked, pointing to a foot-high pile of price change forms.

"Not all of them, no," replied Vanlanduyt.

"The fact of the matter is you've failed to follow your own rules," Bradshaw charged.

Under continued questioning, Vanlanduyt acknowledged that the department had never disapproved a price change request and he said that if the investigations had been performed as required under the rules, the "numerous violations" of state law discovered during recent hearings in Springfield would have been revealed much earlier.

Although Vanlanduyt said the department had not sought prosecution of any firms found in violation of the law so far, he said that since the committee had pressed the point, he would ask the attorney general's office to seek criminal prosecut on against violators.

The committee forwarded a resolution to state Agriculture Director James Boillot, urging him to make all such confidential information in the department's possession public "in the best interest of the dairy industry."

Following August defeat

To resubmit library tax

By MARY LOU VOSSMEYER
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The Pettis County Library Board Tuesday night unanimously voted to circulate petitions to resubmit the 5-cent tax levy in November's general election. The same levy was defeated by a two-to-one margin in the Aug. 6 primary election.

Richard Parker, director of Boonslick Regional Library, said the levy is needed to cope with inflation and equalize the tax burden in the three counties (Pettis, Benton and Cooper) served by the library district. The 5-cent levy would increase the present levy from 10 cents to 15 cents. The peition deadline is Sept. 20, Parker said.

In a public hearing prior to the board's decision, Parker asked for feedback on the options available to the library. A straw vote of the group of about 20 persons showed a unanimous opinion to resubmit the levy.

At the hearing, Parker told the group that if the levy were not resubmitted, the only option would be to cut library service.

"In effect, we've already done that," Parker said. "We already have cut back on staff time and made more use of donated free time."

Parker added that if the levy is not passed, "it's going to be a downhill slide. I'm afraid that's what its going to be."

He pointed out that in the last year the library has lost $8,000 in intangible tax revenue and that household and personal property tax revenue also will be lost, due to recent state legislation.

"The minimum wage law was probably the straw that broke the camel's back. This forced us to tear up the old salary scale and increase it by $6,000. And it will be even more next year," Parker said.

Lee Young, the library bookmobile driver, said, "The price of gasoline has just about ruined the bookmobile service."

He pointed out that Pettis County "has voted three times for a levy and failed royally each time."

Parker said that although the three counties in Boonslick Regional Library are joined by contract, each county is a separate entity with its own board and its own tax base.

Parker also mentioned that he and some library staff members had considered eliminating Pettis County's bookmobile service if the levy does not pass.

However, he heard opposition to that proposal from most of the members present at the meeting.

Fleming answers Ashurst's charges

Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney Gary Fleming released a statement Tuesday afternoon clarifying charges made against him by Missouri Highway Patrol undercover agent Robert E. Ashurst before a state senate subcommittee investigating the Ozark Music Festival.

Ashurst's report was made public Monday by Sen. Richard Webster, R-Carthage, chairman of the investigating committee. The report said that undercover drug purchases on the State Fairgrounds were "fruitless" because of a policy set by Fleming.

Fleming's statement rebutted saying: "It has come to my attention through various news media that Sgt. Robert E. Ashurst, an undercover agent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, has alleged that he did not buy drugs for prosecution during the Ozark Music Festival because of a conversation with me on July 16, 1974.

"He alleges two reasons for this policy. The first allegation is that I did not prosecute nine individuals arrested for possession of drugs. The second allegation is that I would not prosecute cases until after receipt of the laboratory analysis which would take approximately three months.

"I authorized release of 11 of 14 individuals taken into custody on July 15, 1974, (at the west fairgrounds) for the simple reason that there was no evidence to show any of them guilty of a violation of the law; and Sgt. Ashurst was so advised by me. The arrests of the individuals released were warrantless arrests without probable cause and never should have taken place. I suggested to Sgt. Ashurst that drugs bought be forwarded to the laboratory for analysis before the filing of charges because of the law enforcement policy agreed to by Col. Sam Smith, superintendent of the Patrol, and Mike Garrett, director of the department of public safety of the state of Missouri, which was not to make any arrest for drug violations during the festival. I would have gladly prosecuted any violations after the close of the festival. Approximately one week prior to the conversation with Sgt. Ashurst, his immediate superior, Lt. C. C. Maddox, had advised me and Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax that it would be the Patrol's policy to have undercover agents at the festival for intelligence purposes only and not for prosecution.

"Finally Sgt. Ashurst alleges violations of possession of narcotic apparatus which according to an April 18, 1974, ruling of the Kansas City District of the Missouri Court

Turks capture town, airstrip

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Turkish command reported its tank-led troops captured a town eight miles from the Cypriot capital of Nicosia today and overran its military airstrip.

Turkish forces also drove south and east of Nicosia, taking over the Greek Cypriot radio station in the southern part of the capital.

A Turkish announcer indicated the Nicosia airport also had fallen. But later reports showed the airfield taken was the one at Timbou, eight miles southeast of Nicosia.

The radio gave the impression that the Turks were attempting to encircle Nicosia.

The broadcast came as heavy fighting broke out on the island following the breakdown of peace efforts, and Greece announced withdrawal of its military forces from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The announcement was made on the previously Greek-controlled Cyprus Broadcasting Co. station, indicating the Turks captured it.

The station suddenly stopped broadcasting Greek Cypriot communiques and martial music, and appealed in Greek for Greek Cypriots to surrender.

It announced that Turkish forces were advancing to the southeast and southwest of the city, and said "The Timbou and the airport areas previously held by the Greek forces have been captured."

Turkish planes, armor and infantry blasted their way through Greek Cypriot lines on the island, rocking Cyprus with heavy explosions and sending up huge columns of smoke from devastated buildings.

At least 41 persons were reported wounded in the first few hours of fighting, including 12 members of the U.N. peacekeeping force and one newsman. The Greek radio claimed four Turkish planes were downed.

Turkey said it wanted to gain control of only a "fair share" of territory for the Turkish Cypriots and not the whole island. This was an apparent reference to the northern part of Cyprus.

Greece announced its withdrawal from military participation in NATO as a result of the onslaught, and discussed the possibility of War with Turkey.

Witnesses in northern Greece reported new tanks on flat cars and trains moved through the night and early today in the direction of the Turkish border.

Financial success almost sure for Joplin Festival

The Scott Joplin Ragtime Festival is shaping up as a financial success, festival board members were told Wednesday.

A profit of about $2,500 is anticipated from all events related to the festival, which started in September with the Max Mortath concert on the Fairgrounds and ran through last month's three-day festival.

A preliminary financial statement showed anticipated expenses of $26,849, against expected income of $29,353. Federal and state grants will account for $4,000 of the income.

The festival corporation has received word from the Internal Revenue Service that it is tax-exempt, board member Adam Fischer reported. This means that it need not pay taxes on any income, and that contributors to the festival may deduct the amount from their income taxes.

In other action, the board adopted bylaws and set Oct. 15 as the date for the first annual meeting. New directors will be elected at that time, and anyone making a contribution to the Ragtime Festival is eligible to vote.

The board also agreed to co-sponsor with the Sedalia Symphony Society a concert by Morath here on Oct. 28. The Morath show, which will be on national tour at that time, will constitute the major portion of first concert by the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra.

The board as a whole will act as a steering committee to investigate future ragtime events for Sedalia, including the possibility of another festival next year.

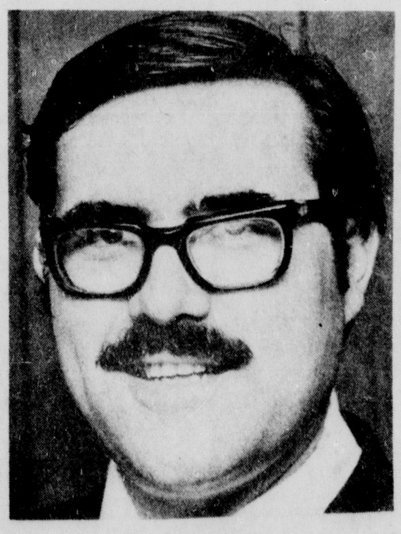

Melton new Chamber manager

Larry Melton, the guiding force behind the Scott Joplin Ragtime Festival, has been named executive manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, it was announced Tuesday.

The unanimous action by the Chamber board fills a post that has been vacant for the last 19 months. Melton will take over the position Sept. 15.

"All of us felt that Larry possesses the necessary qualifications for the position," said Jake Siragusa, Chamber president. "His leadership, determination and creative talents should help make the Chamber a more active and viable organization and we are certainly glad to have him aboard."

The Chamber board, which had been reluctant to hire an executive manager to succeed Chuck Lawrence because of financial considerations, recently "decided that we definitely do need a manager," said K.U. Love Jr., first vice president.

Larry Melton

"We think we can generate enough money to see our way clear," Love added.

Melton, 30, a native of Kansas City where he was educated through high school, has a B.S. in education and an M.A. degree in history from Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg. He has taught in the Sedalia school system for the past three years, has had experience in the insurance field and is a former associate pastor of the East Sedalia Baptist Church.

"I'm really looking forward to the new job but I really hated to give up teaching," Melton told The Democrat-Capital.

When asked what goals he has set for himself in the new position, he said, "I think the community right now is handling the current economic situation very well but if I had a goal it would be building Sedalia's economic base and making it as secure as possible."

Ford must decide on anti-inflation course

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Since the economy is the No. 1 problem, President Gerald Ford's honeymoon isn't likely to have an indefinite run.

Eventually, if not immediately, he must decide on what anti-inflation course he will pursue. And that means he might offend large segments of economic society, despite his desire for cooperation and mutuality.

The schools of economic thinking today can be divided and subdivided more sharply than at almost any time in a decade or more. In the extreme, one side insists on an economic straightjacket, the other urges more freedom.

This division is partly the legacy of five years of experimentation that led the Nixon administration back to where it began — tight money, a spending hold-down, a balanced budget.

Alan Greenspan, who was Nixon's choice to be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, exemplifies this thinking. Arthur Burns, head of the Federal Reserve, does to a large degree. So does Herbert Stein, outgoing council chairman.

But those economists more identified with the Democrats, such as Walter Heller, Otto Eckstoen and James Tobin, all advisers in the Kennedy-Johnson years, disagree sharply.

They suggest that moderation, exceptions to the rule, special handling of sensitive issues such as housing — even a little experimentation — might still be called for, despite Nixon's failures in these directions.

Perserverance in a tight monetary-fiscal policy, they believe, might lead to social dislocations even more severe than those attributed to inflation, such as joblessness, financial disorder, recession.

In arriving at their conclusions, each side sometimes uses the same reasons as the other.

The Democratic economists argue thet an overly tight monetary policy would bring more financial disorder.

Indications that the divisions are even more extreme can be gathered from the growing assumptions of some legislators, businessmen and others that the entire policy of tight money may be counterproductive.

This position is based on the assumption that inflation isn't domestically generated nearly so much as it is caused by foreign events, such as oil prices, over which tight money has no restraining impact at all.

President Ford is acclaimed for his ability to elicit cooperation from all parties, but if he can handle the anti-inflation program without offending great numbers of people, that acclaim will become awe.

Mummies and ancient relics such as baskets and cloth have been found in well-preserved condition in Arizona.

Schedule parties for area children

Two parties will be held for all children who completed their tickets in the special Boonslick Regional Library summer reading club program, it was announced Tuesday.

The first picnic will be held from 2 to 4 p.m. Aug. 21 in the Hughesville park, with the second being held from 2 to 4 p.m. Aug. 24 in Liberty Park.

Films, games and other activities are also planned.

Clinic is planned

COLE CAMP — The WESCENMO children's health project will conduct a clinic from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 20 at the Trinity Lutheran Church here, it was announced Tuesday.

Program participants will be examined and treated by the WESCENMO pediatric-medical team.

Ford puts accent on defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford promises to support detente with the Soviet Union but he puts the accent on defense.

"Strong defense is the surest way to peace," he said Monday night in a first report to Congress and the nation. "Strength makes detente attainable. Weakness invites war, as my generation knows . . ."

The speech reflected Ford's commitment during 25 years in Congress to a strong military—and his recent loyalty to the Nixon administration's bid to ease tensions with Moscow.

"To our two peoples, and to all mankind, we owe a continued effort to live, and where possible to work together in peace," Ford said.

"For, in a thermonuclear age, there can be no alternatives to a positive and peaceful relationship between our nations."

Ford did not specify how much the United States should be willing to limit its military arsenal in a mutual arms reduction with the Soviet Union.

One of his first big jobs will be to resolve differences between the Pentagon and the State Department in advance of a new round of nuclear arms talks in Geneva.

Continuity was the key word for the new President. He used it each time in outlining eight foreign policy guideposts. Among them:

For the European allies and Japan—"continuity in the loyal collaboration of our many mutual endeavors."

For mainland China—continuing on the course of friendship set by the Nixon Administration.

For the Arab states and Israel—"we shall carry out our promise to promote continuing negotiation among all parties for a complete, just and lasting settlement."

The Middle East seems sure to preoccupy Ford in his first week in the White House.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger opened talks late Monday with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy. Ford will see him on Wednesday and then receive Jordan's King Hussein on Friday.

The diplomacy is designed to set the stage for a negotiated Israeli withdrawal from portions of the west bank of the Jordan River.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, meanwhile, is directing a separate series of conferences with visiting Egyptians that will result Wednesday in the signing of new economic, scientific and possibly cultural agreements between Washington and Cairo.

On the Soviet front, Kissinger confirmed that Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Communist party leader, had sent Kissinger a message, in addition to the formal, goodwill note Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny, sent to the White House.

The contents of Brezhnev's message were not disclosed. White House sources said, meanwhile, that Ford may ask Brezhnev to advance his visit to the United States, now tentatively planned for late June or July.

These sources also said Ford is considering a goodwill tour of Western Europe. Later, a White House spokesman said any overseas travel probably would not come until after the November elections.

Tennis boom in Hollywood

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On the stages where Glenn Ford once romanced Rita Hayworth there is a new kind of love game — tennis.

The question of what to do with Hollywood's empty movie stages is being answered, temporarily at least, by capitalizing on the tennis boom.

At least two studios that once bustled with cowpokes and dancing girls are now welcoming white-shorted tennis enthusiasts.

First into the field was the Hollywood Indoor Tennis Club, which rented the back part of the Columbia Studios, vacated when Columbia moved to Warner Brothers.

Resident pro an manager is Allen Tong, onetime captain of the University of Southern California tennis team.

"We run a 24-hour operation here," said Tong, displaying the two handsome courts that occupied a sound stage. "A lot of our members play at 2 and 3 in the morning. I start giving lessons at 6."

The courts are often occupied in the early morning hours by music stars seeking to unwind after late recording sessions and actors relaxing after night filming.

Why are actors playing tennis instead of movie scenes on the stages? Because few features are being made in Hollywood nowadays, young directors preferring to shoot on location. Television filming is also greatly diminished.

Tong's club has attracted many show biz personalities, and for some of them, it's a sentimental trip. Barbra Streisand whacks the ball in the same precincts where she belted "People" in "Funny Girl."

Other members are Bill Cosby, Sidney Poitier, Johnny Carson, Gene Kelly and Jim Brown.

To resubmit

the bookmobile service is needed to supplement their school facilities.

Parker also said some persons indicated to him that the amount of the levy was misleading. He said some persons had gone to the polls thinking that the levy was a 50-cent increase rather than a 5-cent increase.

The board agreed that perhaps many voters were misinformed or misled. Board members decided to wage a campaign to inform voters about the levy through PTA, Extension clubs, and other organizations.

Parker said the petitions to resubmit the levy already are drawn up and will be circulated as soon as possible. A total of 264 signatures will be required to get the proposal on the ballot.

Escaped convicts rob bank

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — Four convicts who escaped from a federal prison in Pennsylvania last weekend held up a bank on Tuesday and stole $10,000, the Craven County sheriff's office said.

Two of the men were caught and jailed here but two others were being sought, including convicted skyjacker Richard F. McCoy Jr. of nearby Cove City, a sheriff's spokesman said.

Three men walked into the Bank of North Carolina in Pollocksville, 20 miles south of McCoy's hometown, on Tuesday morning and took the money, a sheriff's spokesman said. He said they escaped in a car driven by a fourth man.

The get-away car, which police said had been stolen here a day earlier, was abandoned shortly after the holdup and the four then switched to another car with Pennsylvania tags.

A highway patrol car helicopter spotted the second car on an unpaved logging road in the Great Dover swamp near Cove City and flew low to check out the car. Four men jumped out, exchanged gunfire with the helicopter and then the four dashed into nearly impenetrable woods.

No one was injured in the exchange of gunfire. Police said they believed some of the money from the holdup had been recovered.

Two men later were arrested but two others eluded about 50 officers in the swamp. Roadblocks were set up on rural roads surrounding the swamp and search parties hunted for the two into the night, working in waist-deep water.

Sheriff's deputies identified those arrested Tuesday afternoon as Joseph William Havel, 60, of Philadelphia, and Larry LeRoy Bagley, 36, of Des Moines, Iowa. They were held on escape charges.

The sheriff's spokesman said police were seeking McCoy and Melvin Dale Walker, 35, of Morley, Mo. He did not say how police knew the identities of the two men being sought.

McCoy, a former Mormon Sunday school teacher and Vietnam helicopter pilot, had been serving a 45-year sentence for air piracy. He was convicted in April 1972 of commandeering a United Airlines 727 jet and bailing out with $500,000 ransom. All but a few dollars of the ransom was recovered.

The other three escapees were serving terms for bank robbery.

Fleming

of Appeals in the case of State v. Harper, (apparatus possession) is no longer an offense that may be prosecuted.

"I remain ready to prosecute all drug violations on which cases can be made, but I cannot be responsible for irresponsible police work nor can I be responsible for decisions which were not mine."

Fleming said the decision not to make arrests during the festival was not his alone, but was made by various law enforcement personnel and was agreed to by the Highway Patrol. This policy was agreed to in a meeting held the afternoon of July 15. "It was generally agreed on as the only policy there could be," he said.

The report by Sgt. Ashurst states that Fleming on July 16 ordered that no more drug arrests be made on the Fairgrounds until laboratory analyses were completed on drugs seized.

Three persons hurt when cars collide

Three persons were injured at 3 p.m. Tuesday afternoon in a four car accident at Boonville and Hill.

Hazel A. Marlin, 75, Smithton, Roy Paxton, 16, 418 North Hurley, and Reggie Jones, 18, 2017 East Broadway, were injured.

Mrs. Marlin was driving her 1970 Chevrolet east on Boonville when the brakes on a 1964 Ford, driven by Ralph E. Durpass, 19, 324 North Summit, reportedly failed as the vehicle was traveling north on Hill. The Marlin car collided with the Durpass vehicle, which then struck a parked car. The latter struck another parked car.

Jones and Paxton were passengers in the Durpass car along with Ronnie Cornine, 18, 300 North Broadway. Cornine was not injured. Mrs. Marlin's husband was a passenger in her car and also escaped injury.

Both Mrs. Marlin and Roy Paxton were admitted to Bothwell Hospital and listed in satisfactory condition Wednesday morning.

The parked cars damaged belonged to Charlie's Back Room, Shawnee Mission, Kan., and Henry Cusick, 520 North Hill.

Flooding from tropical storm is predicted

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Severe flash flooding was predicted for several of the Windward Islands today as the first tropical storm of the season approached land.

The center of tropical storm Alma, with heavy rains and maximum winds of 55 miles an hour, was expected to pass between the islands of Trinidad and Tobago before noon today, said forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

At 6 a.m. EDT today, Alma was located about 70 miles east of Trinidad.

"Severe flash flooding is likely during the day in Trinidad and Tobago with some flooding possible in the other southern Windward Islands," the center said.

Forecasters said the storm was moving toward the west at about 23 m.p.h. and was expected to continue westward at about the same speed and strength until this evening.

Gale warnings and a hurricane watch were up for the southern Windwards and residents on the islands of Trinidad, Tobago, Grenada, Grenadines, St. Vincent and Barbados were advised to take precautions.

White House tapes declared property of former president

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's chief spokesman said today that Richard M. Nixon's controversial White House tapes have been declared the former president's personal property.

But Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst said "I don't know" if the ruling by the White House legal counsel's office means tape recording under subpoena by Watergate investigators will be turned over to Nixon.

TerHorst indicated that subpoenaed tapes and others considered relevant by Watergate investigators would be retained at the White House, at least for the time being. But he said a specific answer to that question would have to come from White House lawyers.

The issue of what would become of the scores of reels of tape-recorded conversations has been dangling since Nixon resigned last Friday.

Responding to newsmen's questions Wednesday, terHorst said the tapes are "in the protective custody" of the Secret Service, "but have been ruled to be the personal property of former President Richard Nixon."

City attorney will view 'X' film here

City Attorney Robert Liston said he was scheduled to see a private showing of "The Devil in Miss Jones," an X-rated motion picture scheduled to open tonight at the State Fair Twin Cinema.

Liston said the purpose of his seeing the film was to determine if it was pornographic. Should he find that the film violates city ordinances, he said he would advise the owner of the theater, Loy Holman, of his decision.

He added, however, that he "could not force him (Holman) to close" the film to public viewing.

Sources said the film was temporarily banned in Kansas City. Advertisements for the film state the movie is "for adults only."

Will try man in theft case here

A Sedalia man was bound over for trial in Pettis County Circuit Court Wednesday following a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court.

Andy Foshee, 60, 418 North Osage, was bound over on a charge of stealing property valued at more than $50 in connection with an incident at the MFA warehouse in which a tractor-trailer wheel and tire were taken. Value for the wheel and tire was set at $150.

Foshee remains in jail in lieu of a $3,500 bond.

Bids for highway work to be opened

JEFFERSON CITY — Bids will be opened Aug. 30 by the State Highway Department on a bridge substructure and partial grading construction project on a section of Highway 65 in Benton County, it was announced Wednesday.

The project, which will cover one-half mile over the Osage River, will be part of a planned statewide construction and improvements package estimated to cost about $24.7 million.

Lawrence Co. music festival won't happen

MOUNT VERNON, Mo. (AP) — Missouri nearly had its second music festival in a month, but memories of the first one at Sedalia has apparently spiked plans for another.

John Dattola, who operates a small delicatessen near Miller, Mo., had planned a 12-hour concert featuring country music, blue grass and rock, on an adjoining three-acre field Saturday.

But Sheriff Marvin Quade of Lawrence County said he felt the concert could turn into another Sedalia rockfest, which attracted more than 100,000 people last month and criticism for open drug trade. He went to court Tuesday to obtain an injunction, but Dattola announced that he was cancelling the program.

Most counties may qualify as disaster areas

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — All but 13 of Missouri's 114 counties may qualify as drought disaster areas, says Agriculture Director James B. Boillot.

Boillot said Tuesday the estimate was from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The 114 counties in the state includes the city of St. Louis. Eliminating St. Louis city, St. Louis County and Jackson County from the estimate means that all but 10 of Missouri's counties with farmland have suffered severely from the dry summer.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond and Boillot have asked county clerks to check with agriculture agents and give them loss estimates. The information will be given to the Farmers Home Administration, which will provide low-cost loans to farmers who suffer a 10 per cent loss.

Boillot said he has heard from St. Francois, Hickory and Pettis counties.

Boillot estimated Missouri's corn production will be reduced by 30 per cent because of drought conditions. U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics show an estimate of a 21 per cent loss for Missouri and a 12 per cent decrease in corn production nationally.

Boillot said farmers in some northwestern Missouri counties estimated that even with more rain, their corn crop will be only 10 per cent of what they expected.

Soybeans and cotton will be down but were hurt less than corn, Boillot said. Soybeans are Missouri's leading revenue producer among crops, followed by corn, hay, cotton, wheat and sorghum.

Boillot said he expected to see price increases for corn used as feed.

Missouri's corn output was 228.8 million bushels in 1973 and should be 170.5 million bushels this year, Boillot said. The yield will be 62 bushels per acre compared with 88 bushels per acre last year and 53 bushels an acre in 1964.

The soybean yield will be 25 bushels an acre for a total harvest of 108.8 million bushels, compared with 28 bushels per acre and 127 million bushels last year, he said. However, more total acreage was planted with soybeans this year.

In 1973, spring flooding delayed the soybean and corn planting in some areas. There was enough rain last summer, however.

Ann Landers

Promiscuity joke is 30-years-old

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to comment on the letter from the woman who had had an affair with her boss and became pregnant. She married the nice, quiet fellow she was engaged to and no one was any wiser when she gave birth to a little girl.

Now, 18 years later, the daughter brings home a guy she's in love with and it turns out to be the boss's son. So, they are half-brother and sister. The mother was frantic and wanted to know what to do.

Maybe she doesn't have anything to worry about and I'll tell you why. The situation brings to mind a joke that was big on campus a few years ago. It went like this: A young girl sobs to her mother, "Daddy says I can't marry Joe because he's my brother." The mother replies, "Honey, don't pay him no nevermind. That man ain't your daddy."

In case you haven't had a laugh yet today, this could be it. — Montgomery, Ala.

Dear Mont: I had that laugh 30 years ago, but thanks for a rerun.

Dear Ann Landers: I just attended a wedding shower. There were 50 guests present. This means 50 gifts.

The bride-to-be had 50 signed cards on the living room table. They all read the same — no names, just: "Thank you very much for the gift. John and I will enjoy using it in our new home."

I felt insulted being thanked that way. Any person who goes out and selects a shower gift deserves to be thanked individually, in the mail. When I told her so, she said, "Do you know what postage costs these days?" I replied, "The postage on the invitation didn't break anybody, did it?"

Thank-you notes mean a great deal. Every person likes to feel that the gift he selected has special meaning. It took me almost two weeks to write all the thank-you notes for the gifts I received at my wedding shower, but I wouldn't have done it any other way for the world. Am I nuts? — Disgusted

Dear D.: No, you aren't nuts. That bride-to-be is a bit of a clod, and apparently her mother doesn't know much about social amenities, either. Too bad.

Dear Ann Landers: I have always wanted to learn to drive a car, bút somehow I kept putting it off. I am 59 years old and decided to procrastinate no longer.

I asked my husband if he would teach me. He said, "No," so I enrolled in a driving school. I signed up and thought I was doing very well. I took 40 lessons, one hour each.

Well, Ann, I just failed my driving test for the third time. I do fine with the teacher beside me, but when I'm with the person who is giving the test, I freeze up and can't remember a thing.

Everyone says I should keep trying, but my husband won't give me any more money for instruction. He insists that anyone who can't learn to drive after 40 lessons should give up.

I hate to keep on asking my neighbors to drive me places. When I do, I frequently offer to buy gas. Should I get a part-time job and earn some money of my own and take more lessons? Please be frank. — Feeling Foolish

Dear Friend: I happen to be a non-swimmer — simply never could learn. You, perhaps, are a non-driver. It's nothing to be ashamed of.

Forget about the part-time job and more lessons. Continue to offer to buy gas for your nice neighbors and an occasional gift would be nice too.

Elderly man found degree easy for him

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Frederick B. Noble says his age made it easier for him to earn his master of arts degree.

Noble, 91, says he's lived through much of the history he studied in class.

"I know I'm old, but I don't feel old," said Noble, an attorney.

Nobel has nearly completed three years of graduate study at Jacksonville University and will receive his diploma at commencement on Aug. 25.

"My main field is history," he said. "We studied modern European and American history and now are into the New South — 1913 to the present. I've lived through all of that."

Noble, who earned his first college degree 72 years ago, goes to his law office every morning, takes a noon nap and studies or attends class in the evening.

"I don't find it hard to study, but it is hard to retain information for some time," Noble said. "I can memorize it and keep it long enough for the courses, however."

Noble, born in Preston, Md., earned his bachelor's degree in 1902 from Washington College in Maryland and a law degree from Harvard University in 1907. He has practiced law in Jacksonville since 1908.

Congress friendly toward Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — The applause was for the President of the United States. The cheers were for Old Friend Jerry.

Presidents have waved to congressmen in recognition before. For President Gerald R. Ford, congressmen waved back.

Congressmen and senators have become presidents before. But not this way. Not by appointment to the vice presidency and resignation of a president.

Clearly he was among friends in his first speech to a joint session of Congress, his presidential oath of office not yet four days old.

Political adversaries, yes. Enemies, no.

"Part of my heart will always be here on Capitol Hill," said President Ford, and no one doubted it. Twenty-five years in Congress is a long time and, as Ford said at his inauguration, old habits are hard to change.

There was a special lilt, an emphasis on the word "President," as Fishbait Miller cried as he has so often before: "Mr. Speaker, the President of the United States."

And there was a smiling snap to Speaker Carl Albert's introduction: "Distinct privilege, high personal honor . . . indeed a very personal pleasure."

"I have no need to learn how Congress speaks for the people," Ford said. "As President, I intend to listen."

That could only strike a responsive cord in an audience that has grumbled for years about being treated like wastrel stepchildren.

The last time a president, Richard M. Nixon, addressed a joint session there were some hisses. That State of the Union message Jan. 30 was less remembered for the goals and achievements of the administration than for the assertion that "one year of Watergate is enough."

Ford's only reference to the Watergate scandal that was Nixon's downfall and his own accession, received the longest applause.

"There will be no illegal tapings, eavesdropping, buggings or break-ins by my administration," said the new President.

It was one of the few times that Julie Nixon Eisenhower and her husband, David, did not join the applause in the Executive Gallery.

They were sitting next to the Ford family, symbols of the transition.

Ford promised to be President of all the people, "the black, brown, red and white Americans, of old and young, of women's liberationists and male chauvinists and all the rest of us in between, of the poor and the rich, of native sons and new refugees, of those who work at lathes or at desks or in mines or in the fields, and of Christians, Jews, Moslems, Buddhists and atheists—if there really are any atheists after what we have all been through."

And above all, said the man they had called Jerry, "I want to be a good President. I need your help."

Brunswick girls killed in accident

BRUNSWICK, Mo. (AP) — Two girls are dead following a collision here involving a car and a freight train.

The highway patrol identified them as Shirley Lynn Meyer, 11, and Diane Sue Duncan, 12, both of Brunswick.

The patrol said Mary Jane Meyer, 30, Shirley Meyer's mother, was driving. She was admitted to a Moberly hospital.

The Nashville sound

One of newest Grand Ole Opry members can't pick or sing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When you hear comedian Jerry Clower talk, keep a couple of things in mind. Rember that he sold fertilizer for 18 years by spinning his Mississippi yarns. And remember that he knows the good ol' country boys he's talking about.

Waiting to go onto the Grand Ole Opry stage recently, Clower smiled and said:

"Just look at all those hillbillies. Don't I just love 'em. They's my kind of folks. Let me at 'em."

Then the 6-foot-274-pound former Mississippi State tackle sauntered on stage in a bright red suit, looking twice his normal size. He stretched his arms wide, laughed and whooped a few times to loosen up his tongue.

"Owhee!

"Let me tell y'all about the time me and Marcel Ledbetter was settin' in front of the country store and this big, black Cadillac drives up with a city slicker inside.

" 'Hey country boy,' he yells, 'I'll give you $5 if you can eat that whole watermlon.' Well, Marcel, looks at that melon. He rubs his bare foot back and forth over it. 'Yes, sir,' he says, 'I'll eat it. But you'll have to wait a minute.

"Marcel runs up to the house, comes back in about 10 minutes and eats that whole watermelon. Spitting out the seeds, he says, 'Now can I have the $5?' The city slicker says, 'First you have to tell me what you did back there in the house.'

" 'Well,' Marcel says, 'I knew my daddy had a watermelon under his bed that was about this size. And I knew if I could eat that one, I sure could handle this one.' "

Marcel Ledbetter is one of a cast of allegorical country characters who populate Clower's stories of 'coon hunts, rat killing and Mississippi adventures. Another is John Eubanks, an Amite County, Miss., 'coon hunter.

One time John climbed up after a treed raccoon only to find himself wrestling with a lynx. His 'coon hunting friends offered little help but plenty of encouragement.

"Knock him out John," they hollered. The phrase has since become Clower's motto. He even has a baseball cap with "Knock him out John" written across the front.

Clower is one of the newest members of the Grand Ole Opry, and its only standup comedian. His entertainment career began in earnest in 1972 when he recorded some stories he'd used to sell fertilizer for the Mississippi Chemical Corp. A year and two albums later, he was taken into the Grand Ole Opry.

"I was really delighted to join the Opry. You know, that's something for a guy who don't sing and don't play a guitar. All I can do is talk.

"There are some people who criticize the Opry for not being progressive enough, or not being this or that. But it's still the best.

"It reminds me of a time when Bob Hayes was playing football at Florida A&M. You know Bob Hayes, the fastest human on earth. Anyway, a bunch of reporters was talking to the coach and saying:

" 'Coach, Hayes is fast, but he runs pigeon toed, he digs up too much dirt and he stands up too straight.'

"The coach thinks about that for a minute and says, 'Yes, you're right. But 'till someone outruns him, don't mess with him."

"That's how I feel about the Opry."

At 48, Clower, father of four, says the most important things in his life are his family and his church. He is a Baptist lay minister and a member of the Gideons. He's been married for 27 years to his childhood sweetheart, Homerline.

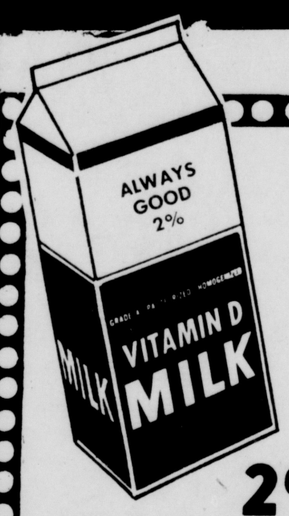

"I love to talk and make 'em laugh. Just let me at those people."

Karate means empty hand.

Nixon is said still wealthy despite figures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon is still worth millions, although his financial papers don't show it.

Nixon's disclosure of his net worth late last year did not mention what is almost certainly his single greatest asset: The tapes, papers and memorabilia accumulated during his many years in public life.

A professional estimate made five years ago placed the value of documents and momentos Nixon collected before he became president at nearly $1.5 million. The value of that collection which Nixon still owns presumably increased when he attained a unique place in history by being the first president of the United States to resign.

But by far the most valuable items are Nixon's presidential tapes and documents. At the moment, most of them remain in the White House, but they are considered his personal property and will be sent to him at his request, a government official said.

The Nixon presidential papers, while obviously of great potential value, have not yet been catalogued or appraised.

A spokesman for the General Services Administration, parent of the National Archives, said any papers accumulated in the White House during the Nixon years—except treaties, legislation and similar documents of state—are considered the personal property of the ex-president.

The spokesman said that the famous White House tapes are considered to be among the papers, but no decision has been made on where the tons of documents will be sent.

The Special Watergate Prosecution Force has some materials already and has requested others for use as evidence in various investigations. But officials said those eventually will be returned to Nixon when they are no longer needed by the courts.

Ralph G. Newman, the Chicago appraiser hired by Nixon to evaluate vice presidential papers given to the National Archives, estimated in 1969 that the most valuable materials in the Nixon collection at that time were 1,250 papers, 750 tapes and 100 films.

The papers, consisting primarily of letters to Nixon from American and foreign dignitaries, were removed from the correspondence file given to the government and retained for Nixon. Newman said they were worth $250 each.

The vice presidential tapes, which have an estimated average length of 15 minutes and could contain nothing as important as the secretly recorded White House tapes, were appraised at $25 each. The films were listed at $250 each.

If Newman's estimate is any indication of what some libraries and many private collectors would be willing to pay for the Nixon collection, the ex-president is potentially very wealthy.

Apthough he was later assessed back taxes on the gifts, he didn't get the papers back because the GSA said the gift was made, even if it was completed too late for tax purposes.

The White House disclosed last winter that Nixon had tripled his net worth while serving as president, to just over $1 million.

Most of Nixon's cash assets have been depleted by the large payments he made toward his back tax bill, payment of his 1973 income taxes and a partial payment on his San Clemente mortgage.

Requirement changed by board

The Sedalia Board of Education waived the minimum legal age limit for students in classes for the hard of hearing at its meeting Tuesday night. Benefits may possibly extend to those students who are orthopedically handicapped.

Dr. Allan Henningsen, superintendent of schools, told the board he believed the change could be justified because the earlier the child receives assistance, the more likely he will be educable. The application of two youngsters, aged 3 and 4, prompted the decision.

The handicapped children will be housed at the Therapy Center but training expenses will be met by the Sedalia School District. The extra students would not overcrowd the class, Dr. Henningsen said. At present there are six students enrolled and the limit for such a class is 10. Non-resident students will be accepted on a tuition basis if the classes can accommodate them.

The board placed the building trades home, constructed at 11th and Sylvia, on an open bid basis for purchase. Legal notice of the action will be placed in the news media and the bid sheet will be posted in a public place. Interested persons may write their names and the amount bid on the posted sheet. If a higher bid is then placed on the sheet, the first party may make another bid.

Bids will be taken until 7:30 p.m., Sept. 10, the time set for the next regular board meeting.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check for five per cent of the bid.

The board rejected a $30,000 bid by Lewis Taylor, 107 East Second. Appraisal had placed the property value at $38,000 in materials and site, plus $10,000 in labor.

Non-resident tuition for the Sedalia district was raised from $827.26 to $930.58. It was pointed out that the 1973 figure did not cover the cost of education for non-resident students, where the actual expenditure per student was $885.57.

A bid of $26,500 from Mid-Mo Datsun for the High Point school property was approved. The property has been appraised at $35,000.

In other bids, the construction of a track at the junior high went to W. J. Menefee Construction Co., for $13,882.

The contract for stage curtains for Whittier, Hubbard, Horace Mann, and Washington schools was awarded for $6,936. Bryant Motor Co., will furnish the driver training cars at a cost of $150 per car. Two cars are used during the regular year and one car during the summer.

The board accepted the resignations of Mary Faulkner, Charlotte Garrett, Larry Melton, Lorraine Halter, Mary Fillinger, Karen Bird, and Kay Fisher.

It voted to employ Caroline Cloud as coordinator of the special education program and transferred Karen Murray to instructor of the handicapped class.

Other certified personnel employed were Ronald Sorensen, junior high English; Keith Buescher, physical education and wrestling; Robert Wayne Powers, contemporary issues and sociology; Vickie Wilson, elementary education; and Mrs. Lisa M. Swinford, school nurse.

A special meeting was called for Aug. 27 to allow time for discussion of policy changes.

Ford promises stability for Justice Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is promising quiet stability for a Justice Department beset for three years with scandal and upheaval.

Ford has asked Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe to continue in office and the two agreed that the department must operate with freedom from political pressures.

Ford seems likely to lean heavily on Saxbe, Deputy Atty. Gen. Laurence Silberman and other Justice Department officials for his administration's crime-fighting strategy as he devotes his greatest attention to economic policy.

Saxbe told reporters after meeting with Ford on Tuesday that he expects no significant changes in departmental policy in the new administration.

He said Ford volunteered the promise "that he's not going to interfere in any manner—nor any of his people—with the orderly law enforcement and litigating activities of the Justice Department."

Saxbe said he told the President at a Cabinet meeting Saturday that "I felt that over the last several administrations, there has been a growing inclination for the Department of Justice to become involved in politics and that I felt it was not desirable."

Ford agreed, Saxbe said.

Saxbe was nominated by Nixon and sworn in last January.

He succeeded Elliot L. Richardson who, in his five months of office, presided over the prosecution of a vice president and acted as an uncomfortable mediator in the Watergate investigation of a president.

Richardson followed two Nixon attorneys general stained by the administration scandals—Richard G. Kleindienst, who pleaded guilty to a criminal charge based on his failure to tell a Senate committee about Nixon's role in the ITT case, and John N. Mitchell, under indictment for his role in the Watergate cover-up.

With the Watergate investigation firmly in the hands of special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, Saxbe is turning the department's attention to nuts-and-bolts issues.

These were among the issues Saxbe said he laid out to Ford:

—Pending legislation requiring greater government efforts to provide documents requested under the Freedom of Information Act.

—Pending legislation designed to protect citizens from government invasions of privacy.

—Wiretapping. Saxbe said he assured the President he will allow no illegal tapping and bugging.

—Illegal aliens. Saxbe said he told Ford that the Immigration and Naturalization Service needs funds for more employes despite the President's request to cut spending.

—Immigration Service scandals. "We're going to root it out to the very bottom," the attorney general asserted. "I'm not convinced that the corruption is widespread, but what I'm worried about is (whether) there is a cover-up."

Audit shows over-runs on budget

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Bunker R-3 school district had budget over-runs for five straight years, says state Auditor John Ashcroft.

Ashcroft released an audit Tuesday. It was requested by citizen petitions.

The budget excesses totaled $169,922, the audit report said.

State law says the local board of education must approve any amounts in excess of the budgets, but the Bunker board had not taken that action, Ashcroft said.

The audit also said school Supt. Melvin Manning should pay back $1,250 to the school district for overpayments.

The board canceled Manning's 1969 and 1972 fiscal year contracts and wrote new ones with $500 and $750 increases without changing Manning's duties, the audit report said.

The state auditor suggested the Bunker district ask for bids on gasoline and oil for the school cars and accept bids when selling public property.

Raytown firm low bidder on Marshall homes

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Copeland Brothers Construction of Raytown was the apparent low bidder on construction of 15 group homes at the Marshall State School and Hospital.

The bid, submitted Tuesday, was $1,126,000 for site preparation, construction and installation of equipment.

Bids are to be opened Thursday on construction of 10 group homes at the St. Louis State School and Hospital. The original bids were above the amount appropriated by the legislature.

In other bids, Huffman Engineering Co., Poplar Bluff, was the apparent low bidder at $116,995 for a new housing unit at the W.E. Sears Youth Center in Poplar Bluff. The dormitory and conference rooms will replace a building destroyed by fire.

The bid was over the appropriation but state officials had not decided to rebid the project.

Minnows, minnows, minnows

Something's fishy in Morgan County

living today

STOVER — Carol Welpman's father and brother-in-law began Missouri Goldfish Hatcheries "during the Depression years to make a dollar a day to live on," Welpman said recently.

Welpman is the manager and owner of the hatcheries, located northwest of Stover on Route CC. "I grew up in the business and have worked out here all my life," he said.

Welpman said back in 1931, people would bring wash tubs, pans, "anything that would hold water," to carry goldfish and bait minnows home with them. Welpman said they sold millions of fancy goldfish before the Korean War to T.G.&Y., Kresge and Woolworth stores. During the war, better quality goldfish were imported from Japan so the Missouri Goldfish Hatcheries discontinued raising goldfish and specialized in raising bait minnows.

Now the hatcheries supply businesses in Texas, Louisiana, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and Illinois with 25 to 30 million minnows annually. The business provides a way of life for 12 employes.

"It's a family business," Welpman said. Another hatchery is located near Sacramento, Calif. Randy Welpman, Welpman's son, is the principal owner, Welpman said.

The firm employs all local people, "frugal, energetic Germans," he said.

Specializing in Golden Shiner bait minnows, the hatchery has an annual rotation of crop, Welpman said. Minnows grow to bait size in a year's time.

Among trees, weeds and hilly, curving gravel roads filled with chuck holes, 250 ponds with a total surface area of 200 square acres, form the growing space for the minnows. When asked how he keeps the ponds straight, Welpman said "Each pond is a number — just like a street number."

Brood season begins in mid-April, Welpman said. Eggs are collected or "spawned" from 30 brood ponds until June 1. Eggs are taken from the brood ponds every day and allowed to hatch out until June 1.

The minnows are stocked in fertilized, treated ponds in different ratios per square foot, depending on the minnow's size.

When the minnows grow to 700 to 5,000 minnows per pound, they're transferrable to different ponds, Welpman said. Nylon seines are used to gather the fish. To assure a high survival rate, the correct count per pound is very important. The fish must have enough space and oxygen to "survive through the winter," Welpman said.

The fish are fed a high protein and ground wheat grain once a day. It takes four tons of feed a day to care for the minnows.

During the winter months, Welpman's crew repairs vehicles and builds fish hauling tanks in addition to making Spanish moss nests to collect the eggs during the brooding season. He has 30 brooding ponds and places 10 to 12 nests in a pond. Four tons of fish are used for brooders. It takes 4 to 10 days for the fish to hatch out.

Brood stock is changed every year, Welpman said. Fish that weigh 50 to a pound (or are 6 inches in length) are used as brooders.

When it's time to harvest the fish in the spring, they are sized and separated by graders, Welpman said.

The most serious problem confronted by the hatchery is "we're constantly battling algae," Welpman said. Foreign weeds are transported through bird flights through the area and become acclimated to here, Welpman said.

Diluted poisons kill the weeds or algae and do not harm the fish but the weeds build up a tolerance to the poison and another type of poison must be implemented to be effective.

Another aspect of this problem, Welpman said, is that the decomposition of the algae caused by the poison takes oxygen out of the water. When ice freezes over the ponds in the winter, the fish must be able to live on the oxygen available, said Welpman.

A delicate balance between man's forces and nature must exist. "You always have your successes and failures," Welpman said.

Lack of rainfall this summer affected the hatchery too. Three wells pumping 2,500 gallons of water a minute (150,000 gallons an hour) could not keep up with the evaporation rate. "The recent rains have helped, however," Welpman said.

Welpman has a stock of tales to tell visitors to his hatcheries. Tadpoles and snakes, common frequenters of wet, moist pond areas, are favorite subjects.

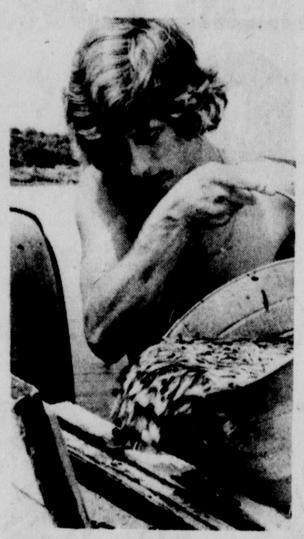

"If every tadpole that was hatched grew up to be a frog, people in Pettis, Benton and Morgan Counties would have to move out because they'd be stepping on frogs every time they turned around."

Poisonous snakes exist other places, Welpman said, "but I've never seen a poisonous snake around here and I consider myself an EXPERT."

Growing bait minnows is a big production and it entails a lot of hard work but "when we're not real busy, we have a lot of fun, too," Welpman said.

When the ponds become too crowded, left, the fish are gathered and transported to other ponds in fish hauling tanks on trucks.

Pros and cons of antiquing

By JEAN BARNES

Antiquing always looks so easy when you watch a demonstrator with paint brush and steel wool transform a family-battered object into an attractive piece of furniture.

You may have succumbed to this vision and bought a kit, only to procrastinate, not sure that the old piano or washstand will truly benefit from this treatment.

Your quandary has no pat answer. These are some "rules of thumb" to guide you, however.

Consider the quality, reason for antiquing and condition of the piece of furniture. Experts generally agree that about 60 per cent of the original item should be left in restoration.

If, after weighing the factors, you are still fence-sitting, get busy with some research. Find out what you have, how good it is and then decide whether to leave it alone or take the plunge.

My personal opinion (for what it's worth) is that the beautiful natural grain of fine old woods such as walnut, cherry, ash, mahogany, maple and others, should never, never be covered with paint. (NEA)

Lack of rainfall this summer affected the hatchery too. Three wells pumping 2,500 gallons of water a minute (150,000 gallons an hour) could not keep up with the evaporation rate. "The recent rains have helped, however," Welpman said.

Welpman has a stock of tales to tell visitors to his hatcheries. Tadpoles and snakes, common frequenters of wet, moist pond areas, are favorite subjects.

"If every tadpole that was hatched grew up to be a frog, people in Pettis, Benton and Morgan Counties would have to move out because they'd be stepping on frogs every time they turned around."

Poisonous snakes exist other places, Welpman said, "but I've never seen a poisonous snake around here and I consider myself an EXPERT."

Growing bait minnows is a big production and it entails a lot of hard work but "when we're not real busy, we have a lot of fun, too," Welpman said.

Pros and cons of antiquing

By JEAN BARNES

Antiquing always looks so easy when you watch a demonstrator with paint brush and steel wool transform a family-battered object into an attractive piece of furniture.

You may have succumbed to this vision and bought a kit, only to procrastinate, not sure that the old piano or washstand will truly benefit from this treatment.

Your quandary has no pat answer. These are some "rules of thumb" to guide you, however.

Consider the quality, reason for antiquing and condition of the piece of furniture. Experts generally agree that about 60 per cent of the original item should be left in restoration.

If, after weighing the factors, you are still fence-sitting, get busy with some research. Find out what you have, how good it is and then decide whether to leave it alone or take the plunge.

My personal opinion (for what it's worth) is that the beautiful natural grain of fine old woods such as walnut, cherry, ash, mahogany, maple and others, should never, never be covered with paint. (NEA)

Deadly flooding

Peddle cabs ferried people through flooded Kazi Aluddin Street in the center of Dacca, Bangladesh, last week. As flood waters began to recede Monday, the full extent of the flooding emerged. At least 2,000 people have died and outbreaks of cholera were reported in Rangpur and Mymensingh. (UPI)

Chlorine fumes cause 27 to seek treatment

UNION, Mo. (AP)—Escaping chlorine fumes from a swimming pool tank sent 27 persons to St. Francis Hospital in Washington, Mo. Tuesday night, according to Franklin County sheriff's deputies.

All but one were treated and released. Hospital officials refused to divulge the name of the person admitted or give the extent of injuries.

Deputies said the gas escaped from a tank near a pool operated by the Diamond Inn Motel near Gray Summit.

The cause of the leak was under investigation.

45-year-old man is fatally shot

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A 45-year-old man was shot twice and killed late Tuesday night on the front porch of an east-side residence, police said.

Authorities anticipated a delay in notifying the victim's next-of-kin, which delayed releasing his identification.

A man was quoted by police as saying he fired at the victim three times when he interceded on behalf of a woman the victim was chasing. He told police he fired three times when he suspected the victim was reaching into his belt for a weapon.

Polly's pointers

Tobacco hangover is unwelcome

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — How does one remove the odor of tobacco smoke from the house? It lingers for days even though we air the house, burn candles, use room spray, boil vinegar. You name it, we do it. We do not smoke and just about the time the smell is gone some visitor smokes and it starts all over again. We do not like to forbid smoking in our home but it sure is our Pet Peeve. — The H.G. Family.

DEAR READERS — This question has been asked and answered before. We get so many similar letters that it bears repeating and might stress the fact that one should ask before smoking in another' home. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — and Nora who has those many, many aluminum pans. The ladies in our town are always glad to have them for things they bake to sell at bazaars, etc., and also for using in a child's sandbox. Take all those of varying sizes to any ladies' meeting such as grange, lodge, church or rummage sale headquarters. You'll find someone will enjoy having them. — MRS. E.W.

DEAR POLLY — Nora will find that all those aluminum pie plates, TV trays, etc., are great to use when going on a picnic. It saves one the cost of paper plates. They are also great to take on camping trips instead of china dishes. — SUSAN.

DEAR POLLY — Everytime I wanted to sunbathe it took too much time gathering up the needed things such as sun glasses, sun lotion, a book and so on that I decided to make a pocket on my beach towel that would hold these things. I sewed a washcloth on to the towel, on three sides, and then put a zipper in the open end. Now everything is together in one place and goes to the pool or beach in a hurry and nothing falls out of the pocket. — GERI.

Peaceful 'vacation' ends

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The departure of 120 Irish children from a Midwest vacation had the appearance of the end to summer camp, but they were going home to the violence of Belfast.

They spent a peaceful six weeks in the Upper Midwest playing baseball, riding bikes and fishing — all the things 9-to 11-year old youngsters should do while they grow up.

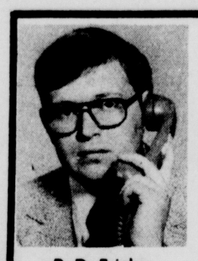

There were many tears when they left for home Monday.

"I've gotten so used to it here ... it's so quiet and people like each other," said Joseph Keenan, 11. "I want my parents to get us out of Belfast and move here." Joseph stayed with the Donald O'Reilly family of Orono, Minn.

The children spent six weeks with families scattered around Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Iowa. Most have lost close relatives and friends in the sectarian fighting in Northern Ireland.

The project, designed to give Belfast children a summer of peace and to show them people of differing religions can live together, was sponsored by the Hibbing, Minn., Rotary Club.

Nancy Timmerman, a former social worker who directed the operation, said the program "could not have worked better," adding that "there's no doubt that these children's personal development advanced tremendously while they were here."

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Swollen fingers cause much pain

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you explain the difference between rheumatoid arthritis, osteoarthritis and gout? What can one do to help or relieve these? I have swelling of my finger joints and I don't know which one this is. My doctor says there is no known cure, just to keep active.

Dear Reader — In general, rheumatoid arthritis is an inflammatory disease, with red, swollen, tender joints. It can be mild or severe. By contrast, osteoarthritis is a wear and tear process or degeneration of the joints, usually with overuse or increasing age.

In your case you might be able to tell the difference by which joints of your fingers are involved. In osteoarthritis the end joints of the fingers are involved. But, in rheumatoid arthritis the knuckle joint and the second joint are usually involved, causing the fingers to have a spike-like appearance.

Gout usually involves single joints to start with, and is caused by the gradual deposit of a salty-like-material from uric acid. I think if you were having acute attacks of gout you would know it and your doctor would be treating it.

There are a lot of things that can be done for arthritis. When the involvement is minimal, as sometimes occurs with osteoarthritis, the sensible approach is to maintain motion and relieve pain. But for more serious problems, even reconstruction of damaged joints is possible.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 22 and my husband is 29. This is his second marriage, my first. He has three children of which we have custody.

I would give anything to have a child of my own, but my husband had a vasectomy during his first marriage. I have heard of artificial insemination but don't really know anything about it. Would you please send me all the information you can about the subject, the process, the danger involved, if any, etc.?

Dear Reader — You might have a lot of trouble getting that done. The procedure is simply one of mechanically injecting semen into the birth canal where the sperm cells can then migrate up the uterus to the tube and fertilize the ovum (egg).

The problem is related to obtaining a donor semen and doing the procedure when the woman is able to get pregnant. It often takes a long time and many trials. The best advice I can give you is to write to the obsterical and gynecology department of the nearest university medical center and ask their advise. Most doctors are neither equipped nor wish to provide this type of service.

There is another possibility you may have overlooked. Some vasectomies can be reversed. Vasectomies are usually considered permanent. However, it may be that the ends of the vas that were cut and tied in your husband could be cut again and sewed together. He is a young man and he might have at least one chance in four of being able to regain his capacity to father children. It is worth considering. He would need to see a urologist for such reconstructive surgery. — (NEA)

Wants to walk wire across Niagara River

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — French aerialist Philippe Petit, who wants to walk a high wire across the Niagara River gorge, has officials worried about the precedent he may set in doing it.

Petit, who dazzled New Yorkers with a walk between the 1,350-foot high twin towers of the World Trade Center last week, met Monday with U.S. and Canadian officials about the proposal.

Keith Hopkins, regional administrator of the Niagara Frontier State Park and Recreation Commission, said afterwards he was worried a high wire walk by Petit might encourage others to try the same thing.

And Mayor George Bukator of Niagara Falls, Ont., said "We don't need this kind of thing right now."

American youth enjoys summer camp in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Like any other summer camper, 12-year-old Chuck Whitehead got homesick, played practical jokes on his counselor, didn't like some of the food and wrote dutiful letters home.

But there was a difference: Chuck is an American and his camp was one for Soviet school children on the Black Sea near Yalta.

He lives in Moscow with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Whitehead of Greenbelt, Md. Dad is an attache at the U.S. Embassy here.

Both the lively, black-haired seventh grader and his mother expressed satisfaction with the camp experience.

"I had a nice time," Chuck said. "I wouldn't mind going back."

"Chuck was going to a diplomatic school here, with no contact at all with Russians," added Mrs. Whitehead. "We thought it would be a good experience, though we told him he could come home if he didn't like it. But it turned out very well."

Chuck was the only American at the Artek Pioneer Camp, which annually takes in 25,000 Soviet children and several hundred children from foreign countries, mostly from the Eastern European bloc.

One out of every four children in this country spends part of his summer vacation at one of the many Pioneer camps scattered throughout the Soviet Union.

Artek is the most prestigious camp, and a stay there is given as a reward to hard workers in both school and society, according to Soviet officials.

The camp is coed, with boys and girls staying in the same houses but segregated by sex in the sparsely furnished sleeping rooms. Chuck bunked with three boys from Eastern bloc countries. "The Russians pretty much stayed with other Russians," he said.

When he arrived, Chuck said, he didn't know that the camp was "so military, so snap-to." The Young Pioneers lead a regimented life, with practically every minute accounted for by their counselors, called commanders.

Marching and ceremonies continued throughout the day, interspersed with sports, handicrafts, cultural activities, sightseeing and cleaning up the camp.

But like all children, the campers tried to get around the regimentation on whenever they could.

"They tried to keep us in line when we marched, but nobody followed the rules," Chuck recalled. "As soon as the commander left, we'd back out of order."

Chuck recalled little political indoctrination or lecturing about the Soviet system during his camp stay.

During the day and around campfires at night, he taught them American songs, including U.S. Army recruit ditties.

They communicated in his pidgin Russian, their pidgin English and a great deal of sign language. Several of the commanders also practiced their faulty English on him.

The roll call report

Nerve gas funding is refused

By Roll Call Report

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Aug. 1 through 7:

HOUSE

NERVE GAS — Adopted, 214 for and 186 against, an amendment which eliminated a $5.8 million Pentagon request for development of binary nerve gas. The amendment was attached to the fiscal 1975 defense appropriations bill, later passed and sent to the Senate.

Unlike present forms of nerve gas, binary gas does not become lethal until its chemicals are mixed upon firing of the projectile. It is thus safer for domestic handling.

Supporters argued that the U.S., with up to 50 million pounds of gas now stockpiled, has ample supplies. They also opposed development of new gas while the government takes part in ongoing Geneva disarmament talks aimed at a worldwide ban on chemical warfare.

Opponents of the amendment said development of binary gas should proceed immediately because it is less dangerous than existing gases. They also urged spending the $5.8 million in order to keep pace with the Soviet Union's gas weaponry. "We must do something to deter their use of that ability," said Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y.

Rep. Richard Ichord voted no; Rep. William Randall did not vote.

DEFENSE SPENDING — Rejected, 178 for and 216 against, an attempt to cut $2.2 billion across-the-board from the $83.4 billion fiscal 1975 defense appropriations bill.

The amendment would have set an $81.2 billion ceiling, leaving the Pentagon rather than Congress with responsibility to eliminate the $2.2 billion.

Supporters and opponents reflected the traditional "priorities" disagreement over domestic needs vs. the need for a strong defense.

Many supporters of the reduction also cited the need to curtail federal spending in the face of inflation. "In these days of inflation and needed budget tightening, we cannot afford window dressing, extra gold braid and luxuries," said Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y.

Opponents said the defense bill already had been substantially trimmed, and argued against the principle of an across-the-board rather than itemized reductions. "This is an abrogation of the responsibility" of Congress, said Rep. Glenn Davis, R-Wis.

Ichord voted no; Randall did not vote.

CAMPAIGN SPENDING — Rejected, 187 for and 223 against, an amendment to limit to $42,500 the amount a candidate for the House could spend in each primary and general election campaign. It was offered to a bill reforming the way congressional campaigns are financed.

The vote of rejection left intact a proposed $75,000 ceiling plus an allotment of $18,750 for fund-raising expenses — a total ceiling of $93,750.

Supporters of a $42,500 ceiling argued that, as a Watergate lesson, private money in campaigns should be minimized. "We are not talking about Monte Carlo," said Rep. John Dent, D-Pa., "we are talking about the House of Representatives..."

Opponents argued that any spending ceiling should be high enough to give challengers opportunity to overtake better-known incumbents. Rep. Gilbert Gude, R-Md., said the higher ceiling "gives incumbents and challengers equal opportunities for success" at the polls.

Randall and Ichord voted yes.

SENATE

HERBICIDE CONTROVERSY — Rejected, 34 for and 56 against, an amendment banning use of a controversial herbicide, named "2,4,5-T," on any lands within the U.S. National Forest System.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., sponsor of the amendment, said the Forest Service plans to use the herbicide on 61 forests in 23 states. The states, he said, are: Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, California, Oregon, Washington, Arkansas, Kentucky, Mississippi, Texas, Louisiana, Tennessee, Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Wisconsin, Michigan, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Utah, Missouri and Minnesota.

Nelson said that 2,4,5-T was used in the defoliant employed by the U.S. in Vietnam, and cited scientific opinion that it can poison the environment and the food chain.

One opponent of the amendment, Sen. Alan Bible, D-Nev., said that Nelson, "may turn out to be right," but objected to the measure on procedural grounds. The issue, Bible said, was raised after hearings had been completed on the Interior Department appropriations bill, to which Nelson sought to attach his amendment.

Bible said that later in this session of Congress "we could have a hearing and get into this problem a little more thoroughly."

Sens. Stuart Symington and Thomas Eagleton (D) voted no.

'PORK BARREL' BILL — Rejected, 41 for and 56 against, a proposed 5 per cent across-the-board cut in the $4.6 billion fiscal 1975 public works appropriations bill. The unsuccessful attempt was in the form of a motion to send the bill back to committee, where the cut was to have been made.

The overall bill appropriates money for power development and water resource projects carried out by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and other federal agencies.

Supporters of the 5 per cent reduction argued that federal spending must be cut to combat inflation. "We have to come to grips with a problem of two-digit inflation of a type that historically can break the backs of society," said Sen. James Buckley, R-Conservative, N.Y.

Opponents said that the bill had been significantly reduced already by the Appropriations Committee, and indicated that most senators have a stake in the "pork barrel" aspect of public works spending.

One opponent, Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., said, "There are mighty few here who would vote for the proposal who would stand up and publicly advocate taking out anything substantial in their state."

Symington and Eagleton voted no.

Daley said still running Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard J. Daley, boss of the nation's biggest urban political machine for 20 years, has been away from City Hall for 100 days. But aides say he still firmly holds the keys to power.

Daley was stricken May 6 by what doctors say was a minor stroke. He is now recuperating from major surgery. On Monday he turned down an invitation to meet with President Ford and other big city mayors in Washington.

Press aide Frank Sullivan said on Tuesday that the refusal did not mean Daley's condition had deteriorated. He said the mayor continues to convalesce.

Daley underwent surgery June 2 to clear blockage in a neck artery, an operation doctors said would lessen chances of another, more serious stroke.

Since leaving Chicago's Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital, Daley has remained at his Grand Beach, Mich., vacation home. He has not been seen publicly, except for brief glimpses as he visited his personal physician, Dr. Thomas J. Coogan Jr., in downtown Chicago.

It is Daley's longest absence in five terms as ringmaster of Chicago's ever-compliant City Council, chief of the urban government apparatus and undisputed king of the powerful Cook County Democratic organization.

The next mayoral election is in 1975. Alderman William S. Singer already has entered the Democratic primary race. Black politicians, increasingly independent of City Hall, talk of running their own candidate.

As the mayor's absence lengthens, Daley's lieutenants have begun to speak privately of grooming a successor.

Early last month, some aides were quoted as saying that Daley would return by the end of July.

But last week, a federal judge said Daley would be allowed to make in his Michigan home sworn statements sought in the trial of his former press secretary, Earl Bush.

Cycling can be away of life

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK — In "The New Complete Book of Bicycling" by Eugene A. Sloane, you will discover:

— that the Wright Brothers manufactured bicycles at one time;

— that 65-85 pedal strokes a minute is the most easily maintained pace for long trips;

— that in 1896 one John Kendrick Bangs wrote a farce called "The Bicyclers;"

— that American Airlines will send you a plastic bag, for $3, to put your bike in for the flight;

— how to choose, equip, repair and dress for your bicycle; and more than you could ever possibly want to know about gear ratios.

What Sloane is stressing in the book, however, and in a current transcontinental promotion tour (pedaling into metropolitan areas from the airport) is bicycle safety.

Smartly outfitted in a blue-and-white striped seersucker jumpsuit, orange jacket — the better to be seen with — and double-padded mittens (for comfort and to brush broken glass from bicycle tires), the former public relations man expresses strong feelings on the subject.

"The Department of Consumer Education of HEW thinks it's really doing something for safety by legislating for reflectors on bikes. Reflectors are fine," he says, "but most people don't ride bikes at night.

"Forty thousand people are killed every year on bicycles, mostly kids between six to twelve, and accidents will increase because no one's teaching them how to ride safely."

Sloane, for example, always wears a crash helmet. "I have 50 different makes of crash helmets in my own private bike laboratory at home in Chicago."

The miniature rear-view mirror attached to his glasses allows him to know what his "options are all the time. The drawback with it, and I only discovered this after the book was published, is that because it's only good for one eye, you don't have the depth perception and you can't gauge the speed of cars behind you."

He believes that children should pass a proficiency test to obtain a bicycle license and that parents should be able to revoke it.

"You insist that a 16-year-old get a license to drive a car," he says heatedly, "but you let him and younger children out in traffic on a bike with no training.

"I went to textbook publishers with a whole course designed to go into school systems: visual aids, test materials, etc., and no one would touch it. We can't sell what we're publishing now, they told me. Well, you can't depend on parents or police departments to teach kids wbout bicycle safety, or even to check bikes for safetv."

Though the hazards exist and he admits that "the more you expose yourself, the more likely you are to 'get it,' the fun and exercise aspects of bike riding are worth the risk.

"I try to do 20 miles a day to keep in shape," he says, his blue eyes and tan skin clearly reflecting good health, "and I average five to six thousand miles a year. I've ridden in every western European country and in September we're going to France, to bike from Avignon to Nice."

At 58, looking 40, Sloane stopped riding a bike, like everyone else, when he got into high school because it was considered childish. "I only got on again when I was 40," he says, "to commute to work in Detroit." He rapidly became addicted to bicycling as a way of life. At the time, such behavior was considered eccentric at best.

Then, inexplicably, bike sales "just took off in '70. It was an epidemic effect and after it became the in thing for adults to do, it filtered down to teen-agers."

Now, the Bicycle Institute of America, a trade association which promotes safety, estimates that there are 15.8 million Americans on bicycles. The industry itself is valued at $900 million.

Little wonder, then, that Sloane's book has sold 25,000 copies since publication in May, earning him $35,000 so far. His 1970 "Complete Book of Bicycling," which this edition updates, sold 125,000 copies, from which he pocketed $250,000.

He rides a $900 bike — which accompanies him everywhere — much of it handmade, with a leather saddle that has 50,000 miles on it.

"It takes eight to ten thousand miles for the saddle to become comfortable," he explains. "The way to achieve that faster is to treat it with Lexoil and beat it to death with a baseball bat."

The "end's" the thing in bicycling and Sloane advocates a leather saddle rather than nylon because, he says, "it will shape itself to your bottom, whereas plastic or nylon won't." (NEA)

Desert is not a deterrent

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Maybe it won't surprise you, but there appears to be a bunch of sailors in New Mexico — a state known for its desert.

A journalist — Pat Kailer of the Albuquerque Journal — says there are 803 registered sailboats and two established sailing clubs in the state.

Most of the sailors must haul their craft mile after mile to a body of water.

Apparently the drive to Elephant Butte, Heron, Conchas, Navajo and other lakes isn't that troublesome.

One ingredient sailors find prevalent in New Mexico is the wind. There's plenty of that, all right.

Bill Rouch, the assistant director of New Mexico's Parks and Recreation Department, says there were 25,653 boats of all kinds registered in the state as of December 1973. That's about 2,200 more than were registered in December of 1972. He said 200 new sailboats were registered last year.

"I can remember when I knew of only one in New Mexico," he said.

There are two sailing clubs — the Rio Grande, which was founded in the late 1950s, and the New Mexico Sailing Club, a more recently organized group.

Greek soldiers bring terror to Cyprus village

ALAMINOS, Cyprus (AP) — In a dry water course below Mrs. Arif's stone house lies the body of her husband, moldering in the fiery Cypriot sun.

Each day she stumbles down a rocky path to look with horror on the cadaver and the crows feeding on it.

On the rise above the town square are mounds beneath which 13 other village men are buried. An old hunchback takes visitors by the shoulder and points with a gnarled stick to a bullet-marked stone wall where he said Greek soldiers executed the men in reprisal for the deaths of two Greek Cypriots.

Just outside the village in a once-lush peach and orange grove, now dying for lack of water, Feysal Hassan tells of the disappearance of her husband Mustafa, the village's Moslem religious leader.

Three days ago, as the 62-year-old man tended his fruit trees, a burst of gunfire was heard. All that could be found of Mustafa next day were bloodstains under a peach tree and a wet white fez.

This is one of the island's numerous mixed villages of Greek and Turkish Cypriots, some controlled by the Greek side, some by the Turks. The Greeks dominate this one, having overrun the few Turkish defenders on the first day of the war. The United Nations is sending troops to these places to keep the peace.

But "there are only six of us," says a young Austrian lieutenant in Alaminos. "We have no authority to prevent the Greek troops shooting here or looting. We can only wait and see what happens and report back to headquarters."

They can't even bury the body of Mrs. Arif's 85-year-old husband.

"Yes, we know about him," said the lieutenant as he strolled through the winding streets of the shimmering white village cradling a submachine-gun in his arms. "But we do not have the authority to interfere."

Fruitless effort

Ard Schenk, 29-year-old Dutch Olympic speed skater, sends the water splashing (top), then collapses from exhaustion as he nears the finish line during semi-final rowboat competition at Rotonda, Fla. Despite his efforts, he did not qualify for the finals scheduled for February, 1975. (UPI)

Ford wants good marriage with Congress

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man of Congress, President Ford has pledged to make communication, conciliation, compromise and cooperation his watchwords in dealing with his former colleagues.

It will take all of that to extend the congressional honeymoon into the good marriage Ford proposed.

For one thing, it would be a mixed marriage, a Republican President and a Congress that is dominated by Democrats now and is likely to be more so after the November elections.

And for another, presidential graduates of the Senate and House have tried such courtships before. The outcome often has been bickering, sometimes deadlock.

In his address to a joint session Monday night, Ford quickly noted his respect for the prerogatives of Congress, and said he would not intrude upon them.

"I know well the co-equal role of the Congress in our constitutional process," Ford said.

Controversy over the proper boundaries of executive and congressional authority was a nagging issue during the presidency of Richard M. Nixon, long before the Watergate scandal became a crisis and forced him from office.

There were disputes over the power to withhold appropriated funds, over foreign commitments and warmaking authority.

The late Lyndon B. Johnson was, like Ford, a congressional leader. He, too, came to the presidency in mid-term, and with a pledge to respect "the independence and integrity of the legislative branch."

His consensus politics gained approval of the stalled legislative proposals of his predecessor, John F. Kennedy, and of the ambitious domestic agenda Johnson called The Great Society.

Eventually, he encountered congressional complaints of arm-twisting, and the bitter criticism of a minority of his own Democrats over the escalation of the war in Vietnam.

Congress last year enacted over Nixon's veto legislation requiring presidents to get its approval within 60 days if they commit American forces to action in an emergency.

There was in Ford's speech an assessment of presidential foreign policy powers that could lead to friction with Congress:

"Throughout my public service ... I have upheld all our presidents when they spoke for my country to the world. I believe the Constitution commands this. I know that in this crucial area of international policy I can count on your firm support."

Ford is a veteran of 25 years in the House, a former minority leader, a congressional politician. Nixon was not. He had served four years in the House, two in the Senate.

In his efforts to get what he wanted from Congress, the resigned president tried approaches ranging from flattery —as when he told the 92nd Congress it could be history's greatest—to stern lectures, to messages aimed beyond the Capitol and to the country.

Ford said he intends to listen to Congress and to the people as well: "I want to be sure we are all tuned in on the real voice of America."

Congressmen complained that Nixon was inaccessible; Ford told them they will be welcome in his White House, that the office door will be open. As an old colleague, he could tell them not to overdo it and get a laugh in response.

Dealing with Democratic majorities, he took pains to emphasize bipartisanship. He praised and accepted a Democratic proposal for an economic summit conference. He urged voters to support economy-minded Democrats as well as Republicans.

But his basic message was one of economic conservatism, a call for cuts in federal spending without unwarranted reductions in the defense budget. Nixon had advocated the same thing.

For all the bipartisanship, Ford spent much of his eight-month vice presidency on the road, campaigning for Republicans. After all, as he told Congress:

"I am dedicated to the two-party system, and you know which party is mine."

Historical crafts, skills demonstrated

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Crowds watch entranced as a woman in a bonnet and long flowered dress grabs a large goose, turns it upside down in her lap and gently plucks feathers and down from its breast.

Grace Ater of Chandlerville is demonstrating to Illinois State Fair visitors a folk art that has all but vanished in the nation.

She and other members of the Clayville Folk Arts Guild have skills and abilities once common in Illinois and other states.

Her husband Charles cuts shingles by hand and demonstrates how early settlers lapped them to keep out wind and rain.

Other artisans demonstrate quilt-making, embroidery and candlemaking. Crowds cluster around a gunsmith making a flintlock rifle and another craftsman fashioning cane chairs.

But Mrs. Ater's demonstration, perhaps because it involves a live bird, appears to be the most popular.

"The secret is calming the goose so he doesn't bite or flap his wings," she explained. "I do that by petting him and talking to him softly."

She said geese molt every four to six weeks and about half an ounce of feathers and down can be picked from each bird. It takes 10 large geese to produce enough feathers for one pillow.

Feathers and down from geese, as well as other waterfowl, make excellent pillows, quilts and mattresses because they are curved, said Mrs. Ater.

"It's like having a lot of tiny springs in your pillow," she said. "That's what makes it so soft."

Feathers from other birds are straight and undesirable for pillows.

"It would be like sleeping on a sack of sticks," she said.

Few feather pillows are made now in the United States, and those that exist are passed down from mother to daughter, said Mrs. Ater. She said feather pillows on sale now are imported from Europe, where labor is cheaper.

Middle East seems jittery

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Although two military disengagement agreements and the presence of United Nations forces would seem some insurance against a new Arab-Israeli explosion, the shield is fragile and the Middle East seems to be having an attack of the jitters.

Syria and Israel eye each other warily, each seeming to wonder what lies behind the other's verbal abuse.

Syria's government-controlled press has been accusing Israel of preparing for another round of war with the Arab states. Israel makes similar charges against Syria.

Israel must feel it has no choice but to keep a finger securely on the trigger. Should the Syrians make a move that looks suspicious, Israel would have to make a quick survey of her options. It would be no surprise if Israel advertised widely to the diplomatic community that she has a hawk-like eye on her neighbor for anything that might be read as a false move.

All this doesn't mean the Syrians actually are thinking of attacking. It may, in fact, be far from their intention, particularly now that the Russians would be likely to apply a restraining hand in the interest of keeping the Soviet-American detente alive.

But Israel must consider all possibilities, and so, for that matter, must Syria. Last October, Israel waited and debated, not sure the Arabs intended to strike, despite the signs. When the Arabs did strike on Yom Kippur, Israel was off balance.

That was a deeply traumatic experience, and although Israel recovered and drove the Arabs back on two fronts, the Jewish state has not yet totally emerged from the shock of it all.

With the presence of United Nations forces as a peacekeeping buffer, the Arabs would be unlikely to attack.

When Gamal Abdel Nasser ordered U.N. forces out of Egypt in 1967, Israel saw it as an advertisement of his intent and struck without waiting, launching the war that humbled the Arabs in six days.

This time, if U.N. forces were required to leave, Israel again would regard it as a signal. There would likely be no debating this time; instead Israel probably would hit first and hit hard.

Israel watches Syria's internal politics for signs, weighing every move and shuffle of the Damascus regime for portents.

Since the October war, Syria has received a mountain of new modern arms, about $2 billion worth, from the Soviet Union, and thus is theoretically capable of acting independently of Egypt.

No Arab nation has ever before seriously considered going to war against Israel without Egyptian participation, but that doesn't mean it couldn't happen.

Carl Rowan

An open letter to our new President

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Dear President Ford,

You have assumed leadership of this great but troubled nation under awesome circumstances.

Even though responsibility came to them with more shocking suddenness, neither Harry Truman nor Lyndon Johnson faced so great a challenge. Perhaps only the hapless Andrew Johnson faced the same task you do, of resurrecting the spirit, the hope, the unity of a people mired in conflict, economic doldrums, malaise of the heart.

Rowan

A thousand people and more will be offering you advice. I know that it may seem presumptuous for me to do so, but during a quarter-century in politics you surely have learned at some time that presumptuousness is to columnists what ambitiousness is to politicians.

And that brings me to my first bit of advice:

CANDOR

People around you, tasting the heady wines of power, will soon dream of sipping it forever. They will implore you to think more of 1976, and a presidential term of your own, than of 1974 and the grim problems to which you should give solemn attention.

They will want you to play games with the press and the American people. They will want you to pretend to be what you are not. To listen to them could be politically fatal for you — and disastrous for the nation.

What this country needs badly now is a large dose of official honesty, especially the candor that flows from the unquestioned integrity of the man who sets the moral standard for the nation.

I bet you to believe that not only is it possible and safe to level with the press, but it is the surest road to success. As in any profession, we newsmen have our good guys and our bad ones, our smart guys and our dunces — but the great mass of us truly believe that politicians who show contempt for the press are at bottom contemptuous of the people.

I know it may seem trite or galling to dwell on "credibility," but the tritest of truths is that, until Americans can trust and believe in someone, not much progress is possible.

THE ECONOMY

You noticed, I am sure, how the stock market surged upward at the first sign of a change in tenancy at the White House. It has been lack of trust, lack of confidence, that has almost plunged us into a depression.

I make no pretenses to economic expertise, nor do I expect you to abandon the conservative principles which you have espoused for a lifetime.

I do suggest that you base economic policy on some consistent belief that does not bend to the winds of political opportunism. Do not say today that you are unalterably opposed to wage and price controls and then impose them tomorrow.

Most importantly, please find a way to fight inflation that does not exact intolerable sacrifice from those least able to bear it. So you intend to protect the military budget and cut spending elsewhere. I cannot talk you out of that. But I can urge you not to let the poor, the near-poor, the blacks, the other minorities be the prime victims of your economic policies.

If you cut the budget to ease inflation, you are sure to increase joblessness. Give the groups who are first fired a break by approving a large public-service jobs program. In doing so, you will help schools, hospitals, libraries, youth centers, parks — and do much to ease the class strife which is a curse on this society.

RACIAL POLARIZATION

You have not been a crusader for civil rights. Yet, it did not go unnoticed that one of your first acts as vice president was to meet with black leaders. You seemed to sense that 23 million black Americans were almost totally alienated from the administration you had joined. Well, blacks were not the only groups hostile to that wonderful gang that gave us Watergate. So were the labor unions, the educators and, to tell the whole truth, most of the Congress and our courts.

No group of Americans wants alienation from the President. If you fail we all fail. Similarly, the debasement, abuse, brutalization of any group of Americans is a shame on our leadership. So please give special emphasis to restoring the idea that the President is a protector of all the people — but most especially the sick and needy, the hungry and harassed.

Your success will glorify us all.

Good luck! And may your good luck be this nation's good fortune.

CARL T. ROWAN

Food costs a part of world picture

Food, the basic ingredient of life that many Americans take for granted, continues to become dearer.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz now predicts that food prices may go up 14 per cent this year; that is 2 percentage points above previous estimates. For those who are already living on the edge of malnutrition, this will amount to a calamity.

Higher food prices are virtually assured by the news Tuesday that the nation's corn harvest will be the lowest in four years. In Missouri it will be the sparsest in a decade. All of this will be translated into higher prices for livestock, milk and other commodities.

America's food problems are insignificant, however, when compared to conditions in other parts of the world. Critical food shortages already exist in parts of India, Pakistan, Latin America, Northern and Eastern Africa.

Norman Borlaug, the Nobel Prize-winner who developed a strain of high-yield wheat, has stated that between 10 and 50 million persons in India alone could die of starvation in the next 12 months.

Many food authorities believe we stand at the beginning of a world-wide famine that will grow progressively worse.

The food problem is compounded, of course, by the continued high rate of population growth in many of the underdeveloped lands least able to support it. The natural increase in India alone is sufficient to offset whatever gains might be made in improving the food supply.

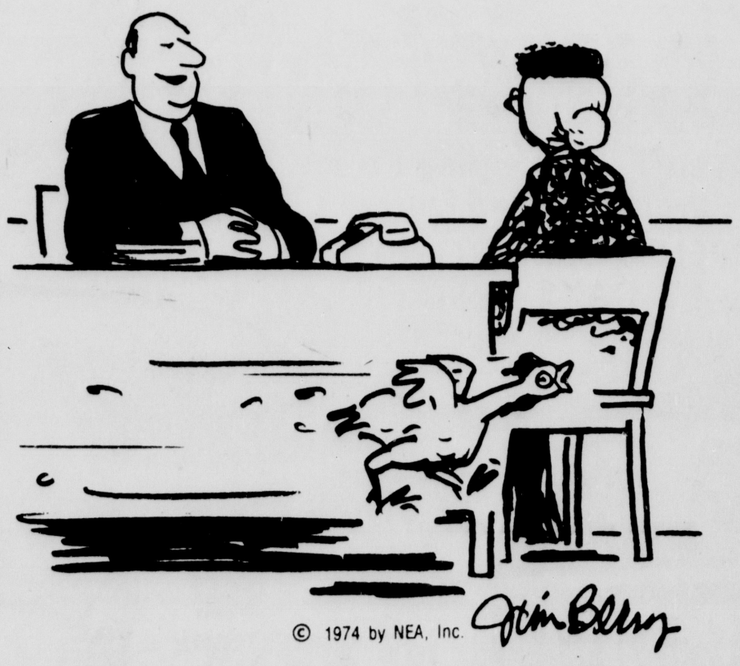

Unless efforts to control population growth are successful, increased food production — if it is achieved to any appreciable extent — will be only a partial answer.

Colson's 'ray gun' to obliterate tapes

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Former presidential aide Charles Colson once considered firing a high-voltage Buck Rogers-style cannon at the White House to erase the taped conversations of Richard Nixon.

Such a "Mission: Impossible" would have wiped out the evidence on the White House tapes which led to Nixon's resignation. Colson, however, contends he never seriously pondered putting the scheme into action.

Despite this denial, Colson did meet twice with an industrial research consultant, Gordon Novel, and discussed the possibility of using an experimental "de-gaussing cannon" to fire a gigantic magnetic pulse at the White House tape storage room. A rough design of the ray gun, named after a magnetic measurement, was even drawn up.

"Novel talked about driving by the White House and demagnetizing all the tapes," Colson told us from prison through friends. "It was something that he said would fire three blocks."

"Novel, who is also an electronics expert, told us he was visiting Colson in March on an unrelated legal matter when the talk turned to the tapes.

Colson, he said, told him that tapes at the White House and the CIA "could cause the President's grief." Novel mentioned the "de-gaussing cannon" and Colson urged him to look into it. Colson insists he gave the consultant "no encouragement."

Novel, however, obviously thought he had a mandate from Colson. He journeyed to El Paso, Tex., and spoke with Jack Prentice, innovative research and design chief for Jetco Inc. Jetco already was marketing a metal detector using "de-gaussing" principles.

Prentice told Novel, and confirmed to us, that he had built a prototype cannon and could construct an operational one for $25,000 to $30,000. Prentice's view was that since the tapes belonged to the President, there would be no crime in erasing them if Colson, acting for the President, okayed it.

The Jetco specialist drew up a simple plan for the "de-gaussing cannon," using capacitors, a switch, a parabotic reflector and a special heat-resistant coil. The electronic artillery piece could be housed in a van, or mounted in a light plane or helicopter.

On March 21, Novel wrote Colson that he would "forward by hand courier the known facts on the El Paso erasure matter, "the code name for the "de-gausser."

Shortly thereafter, the industrial consultant flew to Washington again and talked to one of this area's best known electronic men, Allan Bell, president of Dektor Counterintelligence and Security. Bell threw cold water on the mission, saying that it was "iffy" and "impractical."

At its best, advised Bell, the bizarre device would obliterate a few layers of tape, leaving the rest intact. At worst, it would destroy huge quantities of other taped material and scramble all computer "memories" in its path.

Since one part of the scheme was to bombard the CIA, the irresistible jolt of magnetism might blot out priceless files of Russian and Chinese agents and other espionage and security matters.

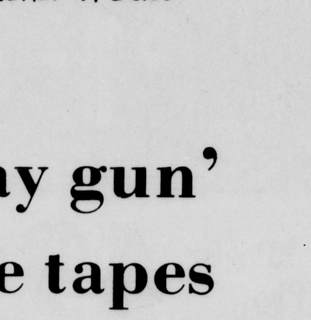

Novel went back to Colson's office with his report. Novel's assessment was that hiding in the heavy woods near the CIA, or "de-gaussing" the tapes from the tank-van while they were in transport, offered a better chance of success than magnetically bombarding the CIA or the White House from a plane.

But as Novel recalls it, they mutually decided not to pursue the plan because of its danger to national security tapes and computers near the target tapes.

Colson scoffs at the idea that the magnetic beam ever came that close to development. "I laughed at it," he said. "It was a little bit of comic relief." President Nixon, however, had fears that Colson was a sucker for just such farout ideas. In the transcripts, Nixon said Colson "loves the action . . . Colson would do anything."

Footnote: Colson and Novel also discussed a caper to patch H. R. Haldeman's voice onto a tape along with an actor who would imitate President Nixon and make false confessions. The fake tape would be sent with a phony authenticating note from an allegedly disgruntled Secret Service man to the Senate Watergate Committee which, Colson surmised, would leak it. Then he and Novel would reveal the tape was fraudulent and the hoax would tend to discredit the whole case against Nixon. "Colson said it was "true" he discussed this idea. "Wouldn't that be a great gag?" his statement said.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Estivation is a process, similar to hibernation, used by some animals under excessively hot or dry conditions. When food is scarce, the animal reduces its normal activity, lowering its body temperature and metabolism rate, thus enabling it to subsist on less food, The World Almanac notes. Alligators, snakes, landsnails, and some mammals and insects are animals that practice estivation.

More to Ford than meets eye

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — Honest, genial Gerald Ford is a deceptive man. Says one Ford friend, "If you think he's not very smart and doesn't know what he's doing, look at his eyes sometime when you're dickering with him. You catch on fast."

Cromley

Ford is quiet, unobtrustive, genial, considerate; but when he hands out a favor he expects cooperation in return. He's a superb technician and a quiet persuader, not an arm twister in the Lyndon Johnson style. In this regard, Ford's mild, friendly, just-a-football player attitude is a "fooler." He's an administrator, a driver. His "not too bright" attitude (people forget his B average at Yale Law School while working his way through) disarms opposition and draws people to him who are eager to aid. But his big "secret" is that he is an extremely friendly, good man, whom everyone likes and respects. Says one associate, "When he gets that hang-dog look on his face, you can't say 'No.' "

More needs to be said about Ford's "not very smart" reputation. This reporter's investigations indicate it is those with "causes" who have fastened this "football player brain" label on Ford, insisting that he doesn't understand 1974's complicated national problems. Perhaps it is because he stays neutral in ideological arguments or because above all he is concerned with pragmatic solutions a majority can agree on — rather than on theorizing.

It's frequently difficult, in fact, to know how Ford himself actually thinks on a given issue though he regularly makes his opinion public on 99 issues out of 100. But are these his opinions or the consensus he has built after listening to all available views? Or are they opinions he expresses because of his determination to operate impartially with the majority of Republicans?

As a congressman, Ford has said he saw his job as getting Republicans to work together. And that he has done more successfully than most, having general respect and warm friendships among conservatives, liberals, middle-of-the-roaders — Democrats and Republicans alike. Perhaps again this is because he avoids biting those who oppose him and because he will go all out to help reelect loyal Republicans with whom he may differ strongly. That straightforward attitude is respected on the Democratic side of the aisle — and Ford is so gentlemanly about his Republican loyalty and so obviously honest that anything he proposes is given serious consideration.

As president, Ford will probably be more partisan than Mr. Nixon in making appointments, preferring Republicans for key posts. Mr. Nixon often chose men more for their loyalty to himself than to the Republican organization.

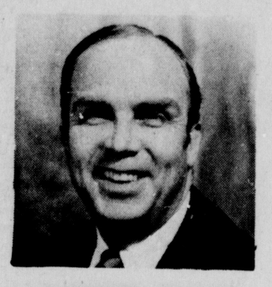

What is most likely under Mr. Ford, then, is an administration which seems deceptively closer to that of President Dwight Eisenhower than to the presidencies of Nixon, Johnson, Kennedy, Truman or Franklin Roosevelt. The changes will be brought about so smoothly. There will be less excitement, events permitting, than we have had for some time.

President Ford will concentrate on keeping the wheels running smoothly. He will hold off on major actions until everyone on every side has put in his two cents worth. He will work closely with Congress, with the press and with the representatives of foreign countries. His disagreements will be quiet and proper. He will attempt persuasion rather than argument.

There likely will be little complaint from Congress that a President Ford is usurping powers and prerogatives. There may be complaints he is not moving dramatically enough. No one will say he isn't trying.

How to handle bill collectors

By PETER WEAVER

Professional bill collectors are having a heyday.

There are more Americans in debt over their ears than any other time in history. This means more stores, doctors and others are handing unpaid bills over to collection agencies to do their dirty work.

Collection agency debt dunners are trained to prey on your fears and your ignorance of the law. If you start getting threatening phone calls or letters from a professional bill collector (not the original creditor), there are steps you can take to fight back and calm your nerves.

First off, you have to know how collection agencies operate. The original creditor, after you get behind several months on your bill, writes you off as a bad debt and gets a tax benefit. Then, your bill is passed to a collection agency which tries to drag as much money out of you as it can. Whatever money the collection agency can get is gravy. In most cases, the collection agency gets to keep from one third to one half of what it reaps from a debtor and the original creditor gets the rest.

Amazingly enough, this fact gives you some leverage to make a deal with the bill collector. How the leverage works is described in fascinating detail in a book called "How to (legally) Beat the Bill Collector," written by attorneys Ralph Warner and Peter Jan Honingsberg. Although the book was written primarily to assist debtors in California, much of the information is applicable anywhere. You can bet a copy by sending $4.30 to: Nolo Press, Box 2147, Berkeley, Calif. 94702.

Co-author Ralph Warner says: "If you owe, say, $500 you're in a good position to offer $250 and have the whole thing written off." He explains that, no matter how much the bill collector growls about "legal action," it's a costly business. If the collector can get $250 in cash out of you, it's easier and cheaper than going to court.

You have to know your rights. Bill collectors can't harrass you by phone (ro abusive language, threats or calling at late hours). If they do, you complain to the phone company which has the power to remove the collector's phones. You also must realize that no professional bill collector is going to take you to court for a relatively small bill. It wastes too much time and money.

Owning money on an automobile is a special problem because the creditor can repossess the automobile without the expense of going to court (it's the only consumer product that doesn't require court action). If you get a notice that you're behind on your automobile payments and you realize you won't be able to pay up right away, the bankruptcy court can save you and you don't have to officially go bankrupt.

Under Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Act, you can enter a "Wage Earner Plan" where the court works out a schedule of reduced payments to creditors. Nobody can repossess your car, nobody can harrass you any more and all interest charges, late payment penalties and other charges are stopped. You have up to three years to pay off your debts under the protection of the court. You get a lawyer but the fees are supervised by the court (from $40 in Bangor, Maine on up to $300 or so in Los Angles). To find out how it works, you can call your nearest Bankruptcy Court, usually listed under U.S. Courts in the phonebook (information operators know).

"Creditors are usually most cooperative with the court," says Judge Conrad K. Sear, who runs the Bankruptcy Court in Bangor, Maine, and edits the American Bankruptcy Law Journal. The creditors are usually cooperative because they don't want you to go officially bankrupt. Then, they wouldn't get any money. In some cases, Judge Sear says, "we find that the debtor doesn't really owe all the money that's claimed or the creditor is charging illegal interest."

Alcoholism discussed at meeting

Remarks by an alcoholism specialist and a representative of the United States Auto Club highlighted the weekly meeting of the Sedalia Noon-Day Optimist Club Tuesday at the Bothwell Hotel.

Tom Huberty informed club members that alcoholism is a form of mental health just as drug addicition is. An alcoholic, Huberty said, needs assistance in the same manner a cancer patient does. An increasing number of persons are becoming alcoholics, he added.

Jerry Arnett, from USAC, described the upcoming State Fair auto races. Johnny Rutherford, he said, will probably appear in one of the races. Arnett added that "wings" will be attached to cars in the stock car races to provide stabilization.

In other business, Pete Stohr announced that arrangements have been completed for the Optimist-sponsored "Youth Day" at the Missouri State Fair.

The Rev. Don Carter, assistant minister at First Christian Church, was introduced by Dr. Kenneth Holdren as a special guest.

Presiding at the meeting was Dr. J. Edgar Harvey, with Edwin Schultz offering the invocation.

Vets report to Liberty

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — Forty-four veterans were expected to come into the Kansas City Chiefs' training camp today.

Coach Hank Stram said one of the regulars who will not be back is Mo Moorman, starting right guard since being drafted No. 1 from Texas A&M in 1968.

"I had heard some time back that Mo might retire," Stram said. "But I thought he might change his mind when it came time to report. But he is definitely retiring."

Stram said the veterans, returning after a two-week cooling-off period was proposed by the National Football League Players Association, will begin undergoing physical examinations today.

Stram conferred Tuesday with Ed Podolak, veteran halfback who is the team's player representative with the players association.

"Podolak said he thought it would be premature to make a statement at this time on how long the players would be in camp," said Stram, who has made no secret of his feeling that the veterans should remain if they return.

Podolak, who was to return to Washington today for a meeting of the association's executive committee, said, "Everything is up in the air at this point."

Kansas City wins; can't gain on A's

DETROIT (AP) — Any resemblance between Kansas City's Al Fitzmorris and his former ineffectiveness as a starter is purely coincidental.

Detroit made four throwing errors Tuesday night while right-hander Fitzmorris shackled the Tigers on four hits for seven innings as the Royals posted a 6-2 victory.

The outcome prevented Detroit's Ralph Houk from achieving his 1,000th managerial triumph and dropped the fifth-place Tigers 9½ games behind leader Boston in the American League East.

Kansas City, meanwhile, didn't gain any ground in second place in the West. The Royals still trail Oakland by 6½ games.

Steve Busby, 17-9, pitches for the Royals tonight against rookie Fred Holdsworth, 0-0, in an effort to become the first right-hander in Kansas City's 19 years as a major league team to win 18 games.

Tuesday's hour, however, belonged to Fitzmorris and Steve Mingori, who came in to strike out Ben Oglivie and Marv Lane to shorten a Tiger rally in the eighth inning. A two-run homer by Gary Sutherland and a scratch double by Al Kaline sent Fitzmorris to the showers.

Mingori has pitched 25 1-3 consecutive relief innings without giving up an earned run.

Fitzmorris, who recently returned from a month's banishment to the bullpen where he toiled due to poor showings as a starter, hurled his second successive superlative start. In the start prior to Tuesday's effort, he fired a two-hitter for 8 1-3 innings in a game lost to Minnesota.

"Fitzy's been in and out like that," Manager Jack McKeon said. "He's like a hitter. He runs into periods when he needs a rest."

"If you can keep your head above water when you're put in the pen like that you'll be all right," said Fitzmorris, who put his record at 8-3 identical to his 1973 total.

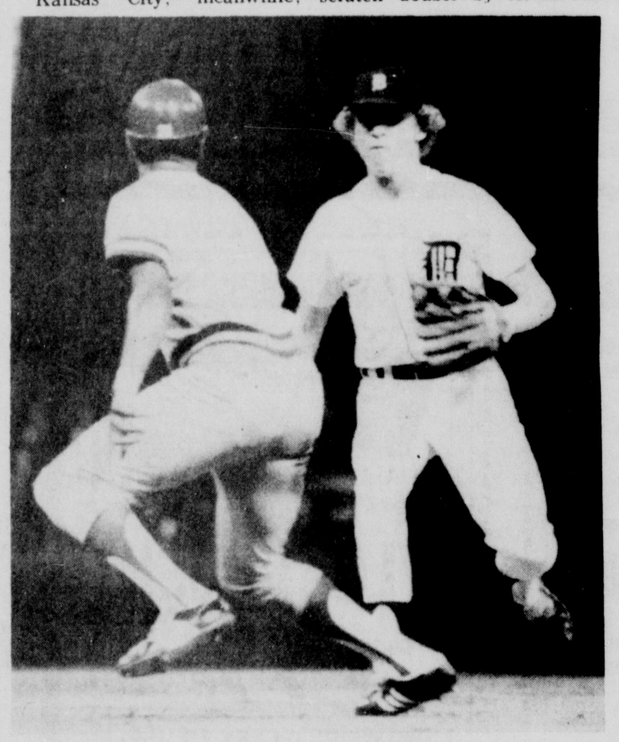

Joe Coleman, 10-10, was the loser.

Shortstop Fred Patek, who set a Royals' fielding record with 11 assists, opened the game with a single and Cookie Rojas followed with another. Then Coleman threw wild to first on a pickoff attempt. Patek scored, Rojas took third, and Amos Otis hit a run-scoring sacrifice fly.

Vada Pinson opened the Royals' second with a double, reached third on a deep fly and scored on a single by Fran Healy.

KC scored twice in the seventh when George Brett and Healy walked, Patek singled in a run after another throwing error by Lamont and Otis hit another sacrifice fly.

The Royals added an insurance run in the ninth on an infield hit by Patek and a throwing error by third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez.

Bakken, Hammond beat rush

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — Officials of the St. Louis football Cardinals were awaiting the arrival of 31 veterans as part of a 14-day cooling off period agreement reached between striking players and National Football League team owners.

A Cardinal spokesman said that because of the physical examinations necessary to enter camp, some arrivals would be delayed.

Two veterans, 13th year place kicker Jim Bakken and two-year veteran wide receiver Gary Hammond, entered camp Tuesday night, bringing to 22 the number of veterans to enter the fold.

The Cardinals, who were 4-9-1 last year, put a 2-1 exhibition season record on the line Sunday against the San Diego Chargers. The game will be played at the Washington University stadium in Seattle.

Athletic meeting at Northwest HS

HUGHESVILLE — An open meeting for boys in the ninth through the 12th grades interested in participating in basketball and baseball at Northwest High School will be held at the high school at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Parents and supporters of the school's athletic program are invited to attend the meeting.

Physical examination forms will be available, as well as information concerning the athletic programs, according to coaches Dan Yokeley and Gary Littrell.

In the USAC stock car division, three-time national champion "Butch" Hartman puts his lead on the line in one of the association's busiest weekends ever.

The four-day schedule calls for the cars to open in Milwaukee Thursday afternoon, for a 150-mile event. Saturday, the stock cars will be the maiin event at the Illinois State Fair. Sunday, it's back to Milwaukee for a 200-lapper.

Aug. 24, the USAC stock car trail leads to Sedalia for a 100-lap afternoon program.

Palmer cuffs Cards' bats

Padres cut Cardinals' lead to one-half game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Whether Lowell Palmer was an overpowering pitcher Tuesday night depended on the vantage point of a manager.

"That's of course the best game he's pitched for us," asserted the San Diego Padres' John McNamara after Palmer halted the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1.

"He threw one speed all night long," the Cardinals' Red Schoendienst said disdainfully. "We're not hitting, that's all."

Whichever, or a combination of both, the 6-foot-1 Palmer, a hard-throwing right-hander, experienced minimum difficulty after entering with two out in the opening inning.

He replaced Vicente Romo, who strained a muscle in his throwing arm, and permitted only six hits, one a towering homer by the Cards' Reggie Smith.

The Cardinals loss, coupled with a 6-5 Philadelphia victory over San Francisco whittled St. Louis' lead in the National League's Eastern Division to one-half game.

"I had a little rhythm, and that seems to be my key," confided the bespectacled pitcher, who was obtained by the Padres in June.

"I don't feel any soreness in my arm. There are times when you don't have any rhythm at all and your arm drags after two innings."

Palmer, who inherited a 1-0 lead, watched Smith's 16th homer forge a 1-1 tie for the Cards in the fourth only to have Dave Winfield's double soon unlock the deadlock.

Afterward Tim McCarver and Ted Sizemore garnered eighth-inning hits for the Cards, but McCarver was run down trying to score on Bake McBride's grounder.

Palmer, 2-4, then walked the dangerous Smith to load the bases and induced Ted Simmons to ground out ending the inning.

"He's gone five or six innings before, but he did an outstanding job tonight," acknowledged McNamara in reference to Palmer's performance.

"When we got him we knew he had a darned good arm," the Padres' manager added. "His thing's been throwing strikes consistently."

The loser as the Cards' lead shrank to a half game in the National League East was right-hander Sonny Siebert, 7-7, who yielded 11 hits in 7 1-3 innings but escaped numerous jams via 11 strikeouts.

"He pitched a good game," noted McNamara, whose club stranded 14 runners. "We had plenty of chances to score more and just couldn't get the job done."

Miss Massey continues to set Amateur pace

SEATTLE (AP) — For the second day in a row, medalist Deborah Massey of Bethlehem, Pa., started slowly and finished with a rush in the 74th U.S. Women's Amateur golf championship.

In the first day of match play, the 23-year-old Miss Massey was one up at the turn, then birdied the 12th and 13th holes for a 5 and 3 victory over Martha Jane Southern of National City, Calif.

But the best 18-hole score Tuesday was turned in by Anne Quast Sander, a three-time tournament winner playing on her home Broadmoor Golf Club course. Three-up after nine holes, she said the 10th hole was "the turning point."

Mrs. Sander hooked her tee shot onto the 18th fairway but was able to play safely back, sinking a 12-foot birdie putt and winding up at three-under-par to oust 15-year-old Carolyn Hill of Placentia, Calif., 5 and 4.

Defending champion Carol Semple of Sewickley, Pa. also advanced to the second round with a 6 and 4 victory over Laura Goodwin of Tulsa, Okla.

Three other former title-holders were eliminated.

'Cooling off'

Most NFL vets expected to stay

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

"There is no longer a strike," said Buffalo running back O.J Simpson. "I hope they can get the negotiations over within the next two weeks."

Simpson's opinion seemed prevalent Tuesday as National Football League players continued to pour into training camps across the country. The players association strike officially entered its 46th day Wednesday but it was fast becoming a skeleton strike.

The majority of players entering camps under the Association's 14-day cooling off period, which is supposed to start today, gave no signs of wanting to walk out again in two weeks, regardless of the outcome of talks with owners scheduled to resume Thursday.

"Maybe one or two individuals would leave," admitted Simpson, "but we won't leave en masse. I wouldn't leave."

If the players' strike appeared to be crumbling, the association got some support from an unusual quarter when 12 members of the House of Representatives threatened owners with a thorough inspection of pro football's antitrust status if they don't deal fairly with the players.

Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., whose subcommittee on commerce has jurisdiction in antitrust matters, said in a letter to the NFL Management Council that he hopes owners will play fair in dealings with the players union.

"If they do not or if the union is significantly injured, we want it known we will undertake a complete review of the National Football League's antitrust status, and if the facts warrant, introduce appropriate legislation."

A Management Council spokesman, in New York where an owners' group was meeting, responded to Moss' letter. "We know that the record of these negotiations will sho that we bargained in good faith," he said. "We will invite Congressman Moss or any others to examine the record."

Most veterans reported to camps without incident but there were exceptions in Fullerton, Calif., and Huntsville, Tex.

Twenty-two Los Angeles Ram veterans who showed up in Fullerton were greeted by General Manager Don Klosterman who had two questions for everyone—"Did you come of your own volition or because you were ordered to by the association? Do you plan to stay here?"

Klosterman said all 22 players, including player representative Tom Mack, said they had made their own decisions and would stay.

Los Angeles was apparently the only organization officially polling its players.

In Huntsville, Coach Sid Gillman, a hard-liner who among other things at first demanded that all returning veterans sign a pledge to stay in camp but later backed down, greeted 27 returning Oilers. After a 20-minute talk, he sent seven of them packing, including linebacker Paul Guidry who drove 26 hours straight from Buffalo to reach camp. Gillman declined comment.

Past 'Superstar' Seagren...
...showing the way

Seagren sets hot Superstars pace

ROTONDA, Fla. (AP) — Pole vaulter Bob Seagren's domination of a 13-man Superstars qualifying field has made him $14,700 richer and guaranteed him a spot in February's $122,000 Superstars finals.

And Seagren, who won the initial Superstars event in 1973, is entered in both of today's final qualifying events with a chance to earn more money at $100 a point.

Three firsts and a second in five events Tuesday gave Seagren a two-day total of 47 points and $4,700 and clinched the $10,000 top prize in the qualifier. The three other qualifying positions remained unsettled, however.

Seagren faces hockey's Yvan Cournoyer and Dave Schultz, hurdler Rod Milburn, speed skater Ard Schenk, basketball's Jim McMillian and pole vaulter Steve Smith in weight lifting. He's up against Smith, basketball's Bill Bradley and John Havlicek, Schultz, hockey's Rod Gilbert and middle-distance runner Dave Wottle in swimming.

Schenk has 23 points, Smith 21, McMillian 20, Havlicek 18, Wottle 12, Cournoyer and basketball's Pete Maravich 10, Gilbert 8, Milburn 7, Bradley and Grand Prix driver James Hunt 6, and Schultz 4.

Seagren won Tuesday's 100-yard dash in 10.65 seconds, the half mile run in 2:11.56 and the obstacle course in 23.97. He was second to Schenk in the one-mile bicycle race as Schenk finished in 2:47.56 to Seagren's 2:48.89.

Cournoyer won Tuesday's baseball hitting with 15 hits.

Eberhard, Pistons close on contract

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Pistons are on the verge of signing their top draft pick, Al Eberhard of Missouri, says General Manager Ed Coil.

Coil said the 6-foot-6, 220-pound star has lowered his demands, the Pistons have raised their offer and now the main item of contention is the duration of the pact.

"He was talking about five years. I flatly rejected that," said Coil. "Then he said four years and I flatly rejected that."

Eberherd's original demands were reported to be for $500,000 and five years.

Palmer beefs up Baltimore's hopes

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

Jim Palmer is alive and well, and suddenly the Baltimore Orioles' pennant chances in the tight American League East look a lot healthier.

Palmer, 28, returning to the starting rotation after spending 54 days on the disabled list with arm trouble, tossed six strong innings Tuesday night in pitching the Orioles to an 8-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

"I've got to be happy, he had good velocity," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver.

White Sox skipper Chuck Tanner was more than impressed by the performance of Palmer, last year's Cy Young Award winner.

"He threw free and easy," said Tanner, "and when he got in trouble he reached back and extended himself. This guy could be the difference in the division."

Cleveland and Minnesota were not scheduled.

Boog Powell made Palmer's job easier by belting a grand slam in the first inning.

"All I had to do was throw strikes," Palmer said. "There was no pressure on me at all ..." The Orioles scored seven runs in the first two innings

Brewers 5, Rangers 1

Johnny Briggs' two-run single keyed a four-run eighth inning that carried the Brewers to victory.

Billy Champion, 7-2, pitched the first seven innings, scattering eight hits for the Brewers. Tom Murphy finished up.

Red Sox 3, Angels 0

Crafty Luis Tiant scuttled California on four hits for his 18th victory against eight losses, striking out five and walking four. Tiant joined Chicago's Wilbur Wood as the only 18-game winners in the major leagues.

It was Tiant's seventh triumph in his last eight decisions.

Boston scored two runs in the second. Tommy Harper singled home the final run in the eighth.

A's 6, Yankees 1

Oakland rallied for three runs in the sixth inning and three more in the seventh to beat the Yankees behind the seven-hit pitching of Ken Holtzman, 13-13.

Astros 3, Cubs 1

Cesar Cedeno's leadoff triple sparked a two-run ninth inning thatncarried Houston over Chicago. Milt May followed Cedeno's triple with a single to snap a 1-1 tie.

Braves 4, Expos 3

Dusty Baker belted his 14th home run of the year and an RBI single that highlighted a three-run fourth inning, leading Atlanta over Montreal for the Braves' fifth straight win.

Atlanta's Ron Reed, 8-6, scattered eight hits for the victory.

Phillies 6, Giants 5

Mike Schmidt ripped a pair of towering home runs and drove in three runs, leading Philadelphia past San Francisco.

Schmidt hit a two-run homer in the first inning and a solo shot in the third, his 27th, as the Phillies built a 6-1 lead against San Francisco starter Jim Barr.

Mets 3, Dodgers 0

Matlack, 11-9, struck out eight and walked none in recording his fifth shutout of the season.

BJ Playoffs open Thursday

The Central Missouri Ban Johnson baseball playoffs open in Columbia Thursday night at Legion Field. Columbia, the defending champion, was awarded the Eastern Division flag after California forfeited its final game of the season to the Angels. Columbia and Jefferson City had been locked in a season-long battle for the East championship.

Sedalia, which wound up the season with the best record in the 11-team league at 19-3, will send to the mound Bob Pledge, who posted a 7-0 record during the regular season. Pledge has an earned run average of 2.68.

Columbia ace Ray Ash is expected to draw the starting nod in the first game of the best-of-three series.

The playoffs switch to Sedalia Sunday night. Sedalia manager Glenn Holmes said he will send Terry Hudson (9-0) to the mound.

If third game is needed the contest will be played in Columbia Tuesday night.

Riddled Hawaiians face undefeated Birmingham

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The Birmingham Americans, the World Football League's only unbeaten team, hope to fatten up on the injury-riddled Hawaiians tonight before an expected turnout of 45,000 fans in Birmingham.

Coach Jake Gotta's Americans lead the league in offense but are last in defense. They have won all five games they've played but just barely, averaging only eight points a game more and 15 yards a game less than their opponents.

Birmingham kept its perfect record intact last week with a 28-22 victory over Detroit on the strength of a touchdown pass from rookie Matt Reed to Alfred Jenkins in the final 30 seconds.

The Hawaiians, 1-4, dropped a 21-14 decision to Jacksonville last week and lost several players along the way with injuries, including wide receiver Jerry Powell and offensive guard Jim Cadile.

"We really took a beating," said Coach Mike Giddings.

Philadelphia visits Chicago, Jacksonville is at Florida, New York hosts Portland and Detroit entertains Memphis in tonight's other WFL action.

The Chicago-Philadelphia game features a matchup of top quarterbacks. Virgil Carter of the Fire has thrown for 11 touchdowns and King Corcoran of the Bell has hit 10, four of them in a 45-21 triumph over Memphis last week.

Chicago is averaging 29 points a game and Philadelphia about 24.

Florida, leading the Eastern Division with four wins in five tries, boasts a one-two punch of veteran quarterback Bob Davis and rookie running back Richard James. Davis hit 10 of 17 tosses for 135 yards and James rushed for 100 yards last week in a 46-21 victory over Chicago.

Jacksonville, 2-3, will go with Reggie Oliver or Kay Stephenson at quarterback in place of the injured Eddie McAshan.

New York has won three straight games after dropping the first two.

Portland is winless in five outings.

Memphis will be out to repeat its 34-15 triumph over Detroit in the season's opener. The Wheels are 0-5.

Streaking Trevino eyes second straight tourney

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Lee Trevino, a notorious streak player, goes after a second consecutive victory this week in the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

The flamboyant Trevino, winner of the PGA National Championship last Sunday in Clemmons, N.C., heads a strong field arrayed for the Thursday start of this $200,000 event that offers a $40,000 first prize.

"There's no reason I ought to have a let-down," Trevino said. "I've always been a streak player. When I get it going good, I usually keep it going for a while."

Last season he won twice—both within a three-week span. And, of course, in 1971 he achieved that unmatched, one-month sweep of the American, Canadian and British Opens.

"Besides," Trevino continued, "I usually play real good here."

Again, the record book supports him. He won this tournament in 1972 and tied for third last year.

And, while he's fresh off a victory in a major championship, he's taking a dead-serious approach to this tournament.

He made a hasty departure from North Carolina, got to the Wethersfield Country Coub and practiced Monday and Tuesday.

Casper discounts himself. Player and Green are playing extremely well. Player has won the Masters, British Open and another American tournament, collected more than $100,000 in prize-winnings and is enjoying the best season of his globe-trotting career.

Green, a three-time winner this season, ranks second on the money-winning list, played well in this tournament last year and had a strong, third-place finish last week in the PGA.

Rookie standout Ben Crenshaw withdrew because of the death of his mother Tuesday. Other major absentees include Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Tom Weiskopf, Johnny Miller and U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin.

Tuesday's stars

HITTING—Mike Schmidt, Phils, belted two home runs and a triple, driving in three runs and pacing Philadelphia to a 6-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

PITCHING—Jon Matlack, Mets, and Luis Tiant, Red Sox, each hurled four-hitters. Matlack pitched New York to a 4-0 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers, striking out eight, while Tiant boosted his record to 18-8 in pitching Boston to a 3-0 decision over the California Angels.

Opening lead—J♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Al Morehead used today's hand to illustrate his theory that you did not need to make an immediate jump shift, when you held a really tremendous hand opposite an opening bid. The bidding in the box is explained by him on the basis of South being sure that North would need the ace and king of spades for his jump raise.

Dick Frey adds a footnote to the effect that South could bid five notrump as the grand-slam force to ask North to go to seven with the ace and king of trumps.

There are any number of really modern ways to get to seven and there are also quite a few ways to misplay the hand.

The correct line of play is very interesting. South wins the club lead and plays his queen of spades. Then he leads out the ace of hearts. He sees that a 5-0 heart break is going to give him a lot of trouble, and that even a 4-1 break might ruin him.

His next play is a trump to dummy's ace. West shows out and South discards his king of hearts on dummy's king of clubs. He ruffs a low heart, enters dummy with the king of trumps to draw the last adverse trump. Then he ruffs another low heart; plays his ace of diamonds; ruffs a diamond and makes the rest of the tricks with dummy's hearts.

Says TV coverage had no great effect

NEW YORK (AP) — Question: How much of a factor was national TV coverage of the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment debates in eroding what remained of former President Nixon's support in Congress?

The answer, says Elmer Lower, president of ABC News, is that it had no great effect in making the thinning ranks of Nixon backers in Congress even thinner.

When Nixon resigned, he noted he no longer had a "strong enough political base in the Congress" to justify fighting to continue his term.

But Lower, asked if he felt the live TV coverage of impeachment debate led to that loss of support, said, "No, even without television he'd be out of office today.

"I really think what brought everything to a head so quickly were the final three tapes and the Supreme Court decision which brought them out."

The tapes showed that six days after the 1972 Watergate break-in, the former President authorized an effort to steer the FBI away from investigating the full scope of the break-in.

Had Nixon not resigned, impeachment debate by the full House would have begun next week and run at least three days, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

There were initial fears that rules for live TV coverage would create problems of journalistic independence for the networks, particularly one informal proposal to restrict the TV view to the Speaker's rostrum and two tables.

But Lower, who with his NBC and CBS counterparts met with House Speaker Carl Albert and special four-member House committee to discuss TV coverage rules, said the fears proved groundless.

"The rules they showed us were something we could have lived with," he said. "For example, they didn't prohibit us from panning" — traversing the TV camera — "around the room or showing the galleries.

"And after the meeting, even when they knew we were just talking about an academic question, they said, 'We think we can work with you in the future on something when important legislation is before the House or a committee.

"They see this as a way for them to communicate with their constituents. They all told us, 'You may have broken some ground here.'"

Lower, 61, has headed ABC News since 1963. He is moving out of that job and into a new one next month as vice-president for corporate affairs at the network's parent company, American Broadcasting Companies, Inc.

Authorities find fugitive in deep freeze

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A fugitive facing murder and armed robbery charges was arrested by FBI agents Tuesday when they found him hiding in a deep freezer at his home.

Robert McCullough, 22, was discovered wrapped in a blanket hiding among frozen meat in the freezer.

An FBI spokesman said McCullough is charged with murder, armed robbery and unlawful flight to avoid prosecution. He faces first degree robbery and weapons charges in St. Louis County in connection with a 1972 service station holdup.

The FBI said Detroit police have a murder warrant against him.

GRANTMASTER RADIAL TIRE GUARANTEE

1. 40,000 MILE GUARANTEE—Every new Grant radial tire is guaranteed by the W. T. Grant Company to give its purchaser 40,000 miles of tread wear if used on the vehicle on which it was originally installed, in normal highway non commercial service. If the tread wears down to the 2/32nds" tread depth indicator before delivering 40,000 miles of tread wear, any participating W. T. Grant Store throughout the United States will replace the tire with an equivalent new tire on a pro rata mileage basis, charging the purchaser only for the mileage actually received.

Proper tire care is necessary to obtain maximum mileage from your radial tires. Your mileage guarantee is contingent upon taking your tires into a Grant store for free inspection and possible rotation every 5,000 miles and the proper completion of your mileage record by the adjusting store in case of a claim under this guarantee.

2. Tread Life Guarantee Against Road Hazards
We guarantee all Grantmaster tires against failures from all normal road hazards for the life of the tread with the exception of: ordinary nail punctures, fire, theft, front-end mis-alignment, under-inflation, over-inflation and running flat.

3. Tread Life Guarantee Against Defects
We guarantee the Grantmaster tires, against all defects of material and workmanship, for the life of the tread.

Basis of Adjustment: Should your Grantmaster tire require adjustment under Section 1 or 2 of the Guarantee, please return it to Grants and we will replace it by giving you a proportionate allowance for the unused tread, based on the current selling price, including Federal Excise Tax.

This guarantee covers tires in passenger car service only. Passenger car tires used in commercial service reduce the guarantee period by 50%.
